WE NOMINATE

John Leonard Moore, able and dedicated practitioner of medical science and a pioneer in the relatively "new field" of pediatrics, whose contributions to medicine were acclaimed early this month on the eastern shores of the Mediterranean—some 6,000 miles from Nassau Street. As one of the highlights of the Third Middle Eastern Mediterranean Pediatric Congress, assembled at the Hotel Phoenicia in Beirut, Lebanon, this self-effacing, 64-year old Princetonian was singled out for one of the highest honors lying within the province of the Lebanese Government, The Order of The Cedars of Lebanon.

In a very real sense this distinction, reserved for achievements of the front rank, was a "home-coming recognition" for Moore, who had known Beirut as a boy and, from 1927 until 1939, had played a major role in the development of The Health Center at the American University of Beirut, which his grandfather had helped found and where his father had long served as professor of medicine. For Moore, infinitely more impressed by the calibre of the reports he heard at the Mediterranean Congress than by the award, it was a kind of "Rip Van Winkle occasion" except he had been away from Beirut for nearly a quarter-century and "Van Winkle had slept for only 20 years."

Moore, a member of the Princeton Class of 1920, whose undergraduate studies were interrupted by Y.M.C.A. service with Britain's World War I army in Palestine, earned his medical degree in Columbia's College of Physicians and Surgeons under the tutelage of the late great Allen O. Whipple and then opted to concentrate in pediatrics rather than surgery. Following his internship in New York's Presbyterian Hospital and the receipt of a Rockefeller Fellowship in pediatrics, he headed eastward for Beirut and there for the next 12 years organized and expanded the American University's Department of Pediatrics and brought into being that country's first Well Babies' Clinic.

The coincidence of the outbreak of World War II and a sabbatical leave in the United States negated Moore's plans to return to Lebanon. Temporarily headquartered here, he combined teaching duties at Presbyterian Hospital with membership in the University's Department of Health Services until he was commissioned in the Air Force Medical Corps in 1942. His four-year wartime stint included the direction of the unique Medical Section of The Arctic-Desert-Tropic Center that was charged with the distribution to Air Force installations throughout the world of information bearing upon epidemology and the care of personnel in insect-infested, non-temperate areas.

Co-founder late in 1945 with DeWitt Smith of the Princeton Medical Group, which now numbers 12 doctors and thrice over the past 17 years has found it necessary to triple its office-space, Moore before the 250-member Mediterranean Congress discussed the "Development and Future of Medical Group Practice." It was his suggestion that Group Practice, that originated in the United States some 60 years ago and was stimulated by experiences gained in the group consultative practices prevailing in World War II hospitals, could be "eminently successful" in the underdeveloped areas struggling with shortages of trained medical men and women.

For his efforts and foresight in helping establish pediatrics among the primary divisions of the medical sciences; for meriting the accolade bestowed upon him by a grateful "second home"; for understanding the words of Ecclesiasticus: "from the Most High cometh healing"; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee as

THE "WHY" OF RIOT

A Pause to Reflect. "Why did they do it? That was the question that remained in Princeton this week as another student riot faded into memory and the question of what would be done to the rioters became an academic one, in fact as well as metaphor.

Two specialists in human behavior pondered the "why" this week and undergraduates filled the "Letters" column of The Daily Princetonian with their own observations. The specialists are, Dr. Hadley Cantril, chairman of the Institute for International Social Research, and Dr. Bryant Wedge, director of the Institute for the Study of National Behavior.

"The boys haven't the slightest idea why they did it," stated Dr. Wedge. "To ask 'why' is like asking 'What starts a landslide?'"

Undergraduates themselves, if the letters to the "Prince" are any indication, lay the blame on the University. "If we are hooligans," says one letter-writer, "it is because Princeton University has made us so." This undergraduate blames "the small town, which offers few alternatives to strictly university activities," and the University's ban against automobiles.

Another student also blames "that ever-present car rule" and says: "The administration does not seem to realize that we are 3,000 young men in the prime of our lives . . . We want and need, a little excitement or adventure; a little of the feeling that we are MEN and ALIVE. And this it seems to me is conscientiously denied to us in several ways."

Target: Nassau Hall. Dr. Wedge, an affable, pipe-smoking psychiatrist who is a consultant to the University and has had considerable prior experience with Yale and Harvard undergraduates, agrees in part with these remarks.

"They pick the nearest target for their frustrations, and that target is the administration," comments Dr. Wedge. "They do have a lot to protest against: they lead unnatural lives, they're up against the parentalism of a University which takes a very serious attitude toward the students and they've got all this academic pressure to be excellent."

Chiefly, Dr. Wedge is concerned because, one by one, the classic, institutional steam-valves have been shut off. No more Freshman-Sophomore Rush. No more Freshman-Sophomore Snowball Fight. No more St. Patrick's Day parade and speech-making. No more Freshman assault on Renwick's, from which freshmen were traditionally barred.

"Life for these kids has become more and more serious, especially since World War II," observes Dr. Wedge. "Students say the administration is restrictive; they are often just as rough on themselves as they say the administration is, over-reaching their capacities for hard study and neglecting the more normal ways of self-expression."

Responsibility? But Dr. Cantril takes a much less genial view of undergraduate life.

"It takes a good deal more than spring fever," says Dr. Cantril, "to propel a young man to this sort of destructive and disrespectful activity if he had acquired and practiced at home a deeply-rooted, persuasive standard of values which quickly and firmly called a halt within him when harmless pranks were about to turn into harmful acts. In short,"

PARTICIPANTS IN 1891 INTRAMURAL RIOTING: Time was when Princeton "gownies" worked off their hostilities on each other rather than on the innocent, comparatively defenseless town. These three bloody, bruised but unbowed freshmen, Class of 1895, show the effects of the freshman-sophomore snowball battle, an epic of its kind. They are: D. R. James Jr., member of the football team, who ultimately became the dignified president of the East River Savings Bank and a leading figure in that city; John F. Poe Jr., class president and football great, later one of this country's World War I outstanding heroes and for whom Poe Field is named; and Arthur L. Wheeler, class vice-president and football player, subsequently a leading businessman in Philadelphia and in whose honor two Princeton Scholarships were named.

The psychologist believes that parents and schools must share the blame for what undergraduates did last week.

"Children should be given responsibilities early in life," says Dr. Cantril, "so they will experience the satisfying consequences of doing what is right. A little boy who is a patrol at Nassau Street School is learning a great lesson. And his classmates are, too, because they are learning to obey when one of their peers says 'Stop'."

Thought vs. Values. One of the rioters, in an anonymous letter to the "Prince," writes:

"I and the other 1,499 made a decision to join (the riot). It was, I hope, an individual decision, made by persons who have been educated to be intelligent and mature, a decision for which they were responsible."

Dr. Cantril, however, makes a sharp distinction between "thinking" and "making value judgments."

"It was not because of any lack of thinking that damage was done," he observes. "There was a good deal of thought displayed, if at a rather juvenile level. Thinking, occurred, however, within a new framework with new standards. It is the value-standards which serve as compasses to guide the direction behavior is to take."

"The boys start out to raise a little hell and they define their standards as they go along. These new standards must be contrary to normal standards or they wouldn't be any fun. And those boys were having fun: did you notice the glee and relish on the faces in the newspaper pictures?"

The student quoted above went on to write that, unless the rioters admitted and insisted that they had done something THEMSELVES, even something "stupid and childish which we wish we hadn't done," they would have no way of shaking loose the University's grip on them as a substitute parent.

Riot? Me? It is Dr. Wedge's view that individual students participating in the riot were probably "good students who didn't know they had a riot in them." He also refers to student attacks on the administration as "ex post facto explanations, not reasons," for the riot.

"It is not a question of individual maturity or immaturity," Dr. Wedge explains. "After all, mature people are rioting elsewhere in the world."

Why a big riot in 1963 and not in '61 or '62?

Dr. Wedge believes that, deeply within the student rioters and possibly unrecognized by them, are tensions produced by Cuba, Birmingham and the cold war.

"You get tired of being faced with things you can't do much about," he points out. "There is general and wide-spread frustration all over the country, and there will be riots whenever people get fed up with being pushed around."

The Tightening-Up. And the role of Houseparties? The three days preceding the riot had been magnificently golden, full of sunshine and girls and everything that Houseparties Weekend means to an undergraduate. And then, as both Dr. Cantril and Dr. Wedge point out, came Monday morning. With exams only a few weeks ahead.

"What concerns me is that there will be too much tightening up," says Dr. Wedge. "I'm afraid the University will try to prevent future riots by clamping down. Actually, the logical thing would be to find reasonable ways to encourage steam-blowing, something like Mardi Gras, for example."

Among the speculations and the ponderings and the undergraduates excuses, one comment perhaps stands out above the rest. It comes, not from a scholar, not from a head-shaking adult, but from a sophomore, writing to the "Prince" about his peers:

"Ah, the golden youths ask, 'Why cannot we be allowed the responsibility of cars and conducting our own social lives?'

"The question comes too late. It was answered on Monday."

Goheen Chides "Times" for Riot Editorial

In a letter published Monday in The New York Times, Dr. Robert F. Goheen, president of Princeton University, upbraided the "Times" for its editorial position on the Princeton riots.

(The "Times," had written that "The rioting students are not exactly jailbird material. A breach of conduct should not cause a black mark forever." In addition, the "Times" had suggested some courses on rioting, to be called "Elementary Rioting I" and "Advanced Riots II")

Dr. Goheen's letter follows:

"I find The Times editorial of May 9 on student riots incredible. If it was intended to be ironic it failed in that intent. If it was meant to show that their parents in their day could top today's students in thoughtlessness and unrestraint, it badly blurred that possibly quite valid proposition.

"The trouble with rioting—whether it be innocent in original intent or moved by a righteous cause—is that it so easily and swiftly moves into a mass hysteria, wherein individuals lose not only their restraint but their identity and blindly aggressive impulses make their crude force felt. Persons cease to be persons, and, to those in this condition, other persons (and their property) likewise come to have no meaning except as they may become interferences to, or playthings of, the mob.

"The collective debasement of selves and the wanton damage that so often results seem to me to be equally reprehensible. I fail to see how a responsible newspaper can condone them, and even suggest that there are degrees of excellence assignable to them."

DECISION DEFERRED

In Second Church Vote. Second Presbyterian Church has held off decision on the question of repairing its century-old church or building a new one on The Great Road.

Sunday's vote was 79 to 65 in favor of postponing the issue in order that the other two Presbyterian churches may have an opportunity to study the alternatives and implications. As two-thirds majority is needed to pass a motion, issue remains in abeyance.

However, the congregation endorsed continued cooperation between the three churches in their study of unity by a vote of 117 to 24.

"As we see it," said Arnold Strobkorb, session spokesman, "the will of the congregation is to allow time for a study by the three churches to decide how best the Presbyterian cause can be served and furthered in Princeton."

A "Presbyterian Commission" to be composed of four representatives from each church, was endorsed last week by the sessions (or ruling bodies) of Second Church and Witherspoon Presbyterian. The Commission was recommended by a study group known as the Presbyterian Committee at the historic first joint meeting of the three sessions, held May 1 at the Peacock Inn. The proposed Commission will be discussed next Thursday, May 23, at a meeting of First Presbyterian's session.

The intent of the Commission is to provide leadership for the combined efforts of the three churches, whose membership totals 3,839 area residents.

READY TO ROLL: Woodrow Wilson Hall, headquarters of the Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, is set for the biggest moving job in Princeton's history. This Monday, weather permitting, the five-million-pound building will be pushed by hydraulic jacks a distance of 296 feet to its new location, back from its present site at the corner of Washington Road and Prospect Avenue. The move, which will cost between $200,000 and $300,000, is being made to allow room for a substantial addition to the building. The jacks, moving the present structure five feet at a time before resetting, will nudge the unit along at a rate of 50 feet a day. (Alan Richards Photo)

BRASHNESS vs. THE LAW At Hearing for 14 Rioters. Princeton University may need a law school. This fact was indicated Monday night when 14 undergraduates-turned-rioters appeared before Magistrate Theodore T. Tams, Jr., to answer criminal charges preferred against them as a result of the destructive riot staged last week by an estimated 1,500 students.

Of the 14, eight pleaded guilty to the charge of having been disorderly, five more were convicted of being guilty and one was acquitted on a technicality of a charge of littering, though he is reported as having said later that he realized he was "no less guilty than the rest who participated in the riot."

The student against whom charges were dismissed is Frederick W. Long, 20-year-old sophomore. Long was defended by Princeton lawyer Gerald R. Stockman, who was also counsel for 20-year-old Sophomore Bryan Tabler, charged and subsequently convicted under the Borough's disordery persons ordinance.

The eight who immediately entered guilty pleas were Seniors Marshall T. Morgan, 20; John M. Rediker, 21; Junior John M. Greacen, 20; and Sophomores Howard M. Snyder, 19; Stephen P. Fishelman, 18; Serre A. Murphy, 19; William R. Everdell, 21; and Ronald E. Burns, 19.

Do-It-Yourself Lawyers. It is some of the remaining four who might profit from a law school. Pale shades of Clarence Darrow, they showed a strong mixture of volubility and assertiveness, at times almost to the point of impudence, and confident, if erroneous, knowledge of the law.

As a result of the extensive, pseudo-legalistic maunderings of some of those pleading not guilty, the hearing did not end until 3.15 a.m. And, if it hadn't been for the patient but firm admonitions of Magistrate Tams, the courtroom might still be serving as the off-campus branch of the Whig-Clio Debating Society.

As it was, Magistrate Tams, after several warnings, put an end to unnecessary audience participation by having the courtroom cleared about 20 minutes before the end of the four-hour hearing on the riot-connected charges.

This resulted in the departure of the 100-150 undergraduate spectators from the courtroom and a relatively quick wind-up to the court session. The 13 who were convicted at the hearing were told to reappear in court at 10 a.m. this Thursday for sentencing.

From Not Guilty to Guilty. In addition to the eight who had pleaded guilty at the start, the following five who first pleaded not guilty were convicted after testimony had been taken: Junior Kenneth A. Perko, Jr., 20; Sophomores Gary L. Taylor, 19; Tabler; Daniel A. Per-Lee, 19; and Freshman Graham G. Berry, Jr., 18.

Police officers entering charges against the 14 included Lieut. Francis J. Maguire, Sgt. James M. Kopliner, Sgt. Robert J. Anderson, Sgt. Michael F. Carnevale, Ptl. Russell H. Shangle and Ptl. Ralph A. Procaccino.

Of the 13 who will appear for sentencing before Magistrate Tams, Berry and Everdell stand convicted of the unlawful littering ordinance which carries a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine and a year in jail. All of the others except Perko are convicted under the disorderly persons law with a maximum of $40 in fines, 30 days in jail. Perko's conviction carries with it a possible maximum of a $25 fine or five days in jail.

University Discipline. University hearings on the riot and the 40 rioters apprehended by the police and by University proctors began Tuesday at 4 p.m. These hearings are being conducted by the University's discipline committee, which consists of deans, faculty members and undergraduates.

Action taken by the committee will not be known until all of the cases have been heard.

Damage and other costs connected with the riot have reached a figure just short of $2,000, according to Borough Administrator Robert F. Mooney. At the request of the University, bills for damage are to be submitted to Mr. Mooney. He will then forward them to the office of the dean of the college.

Other Damage Costs. The total of nearly $2,000 in bills which Mr. Mooney has received to date does not include that of the Pennsylvania Railroad for damage to its equipment at the Princeton station; costs for repair of the air-compressor which was set loose on Washington Road, destruction to a large part of the iron fencing around "Prospect," President Goheen's home, nor riot-damage to any other University property.

At his Tuesday press conference this week, Mayor Hen-

May can't seem to shake off those winter chills. After a muggy ride into the high 80's Thursday, the temperature hits the skids Friday and dropped all the way to 40, with scattered snowflakes again reported in outlying areas that night.

Everything points to normalcy for the next few days, however. Generally fair through the weekend, with scattered showers a possibility late Saturday.

ry S. Patterson had this to say:

"Undergraduates used to have impromptu parades, always good-natured, along Nassau Street and the immediate environs of the campus like University Place. When the authorities showed up, the undergraduates would drift back on campus."

Out of Order. While pointing out that this most recent and acute disturbance might be considered "good-natured" in that nobody "seemed to have fists clenched," the mayor continued:

"But when they parade down many side-streets to see what petty damage they can do like turning over garbage pails, not listening to authorities, or even fighting with them, it's very much out of order."

Mayor Patterson said that the police did not strike back or manhandle the rioters and that he is very proud of the men on the force for their handling of the unruly mob. He added that police behavior showed how well Chief Peter J. McCrohan and Lieutenant Maguire had trained them for such emergencies.

The mayor also commented with pride on the actions of Borough Administrator and Assistant Fire Chief Robert F. Mooney at the time of the riot-set blaze at the railroad station. According to the mayor, Mr. Mooney was standing on the tracks with a high-pressure fire hose in his hands when an undergraduate started needling him. Instead of simply turning the hose on the culprit, Mr. Mooney told him "Get up out of here before you get hurt by these sparks."

Added the Mayor: "Just one person out of control, a policeman or a fireman, and there could have been far more serious trouble."

Fast Clean-Up. In addition, the mayor also praised the men who, under the direction of Borough Engineer Arthur T. Brokaw, did a herculean job of cleaning up the Augean stables that was Princeton after the riot. By Tuesday morn-

Lambertville, N. J.

THIS WEEK AT THE NEW STRAND

Hollywood is still making pictures, and the bad ones are getting worse, but the good ones are getting better. One of the best in the past year by anyone's standards is BILLY BUDD, a story by Herman Melville dealing with a man's integrity in the face of implacable despotism, a subject as important to us as it was to Melville. Melvyn Douglas, Robert Ryan and a new star, Terence Stamp display their great acting ability in this film.

Thurs. and Fri. 8.30; Sat. 7 and 9:15.

• • • •

Sun., Mon. and Tues., May 19-21, we have two films by John Osborne, the most articulate of Britain's Angry Young Men. Lawrence Olivier and his young wife Joan Plowright star in THE ENTERTAINER, the story of a theatrical has-been who never was.

LOOK BACK IN ANGER depicts the thoughts, feelings and activities of the generation born during World War II, a generation that considers itself without hope, in England at least. Richard Burton, Claire Bloom and Mary Ure star.

Sun.: LOOK BACK at 6:30 and 10; ENTERTAINER 8:30 only. Mon. and Tues. 8.30, ENTERTAINER first.

• • • •

Wed., May 22, at 8:30 P.M. only, a one-night stand for LA DOLCE VITA which speaks for itself.

If you would like to be on our mailing list, write Box 91, Lambertville. We have been considering the possibility of a bus from Princeton and return on certain nights. Please write if interested, also if you have any ideas how it can be done.

News Of The THEATRES

MURRAY HAS BALLET

By Aparri Dancers. The tiny stage of Murray Theatre has been used for musical comedy and Greek tragedy, for experimental theatre and formal concert, but never, so far as anyone knows, for a full length ballet.

"Echoes of Paris," the spring presentation of the Aparri Dancers, will bring ballet to Murray Theatre for the first time, in a production to be given Saturday at 2:30 and 8.30 p.m.

The ballet, choreographed by Mila Gibbons, has been set to the music of Francois Poulenc's "Les Biches." For the Murray Theatre production, the Poulenc score, as played by the Paris Conservatory Orchestra, has been transferred to tape. The technician who served as tape recorder is Murphy Sewall of WPRB.

Musical director and adviser for the Aparri Ballet is Richard Trythall, composer and pupil of Roger Sessions. The set, from a sketch by Cintra Huber, has been executed by Marshall Johnson. University undergraduate Daniel Goodrich of Triangle Club is the lighting expert.

Tickets for "Echoes of Paris" are on sale at Male's Book Shop, the University Store and on the day of performance at the Murray boxoffice.

PLAYHOUSE

Love Is a Ball (now playing) is a light comedy which takes place on the Riviera. The cast includes Charles Boyer, Glenn Ford, Hope Lange and Ricardo Montalban.

Miss Lange is a scatter-brained millionaress summering at the Riviera home of her gourmet uncle. She is a target for Charles Boyer, a marriage broker in the grand manner, who has under his present tutelage an impoverished -and clumsy—grand duke, played by Mantalban.

Glenn Ford, an itinerant American adventurer, accepts the job of tutoring the grand duke in the fine arts of living, such as riding, polo and racing car driving. Laurence Hardy is engaged to help with his speech, while Boyer handles the social graces department. The complications which ensue are very amusing. Comment: lively and engaging.

Come Fly With Me (Sun. thru. Tues.) concerns the escapades of three airline hostesses working the New York-Paris-Vienna run. Pamela Tiffin is the new girl on board who strives to be accepted by the rest of the crew. She falls for first officer Hugh O'Brian and is jolted into awareness of his married girl friend.

Dolores Hart is the hard and jaded gal who latches onto "those who count" and is foiled by a down-at-the-heels baron, played by Karl Boehm. Then there's a May-December romance between Lois Nettleton and Karl Malden. Comment: lighter-than-air.

GARDEN

The Four Days of Naples (now playing) This is an Italian film (English sub-titles) which mirrors a phase of the resistance movement which swept through Italy in the closing days of the Italian campaign. Its greatest impetus is said to have come from the action of the people of Naples during the four days from September 28 through October 1, 1943.

After 2[illegible] had been eliminated and the Allied forces were moving toward the city, the Neapolitans rebelled against the Nazi occupation forces, destroying installations and wreaking havoc. Their guerrilla-like attacks on the Germans came to a climax in the battle of the stadium in a mob scene of great intensity.

There is some controversy over this film. Some groups maintain that only a few hundred persons were actually involved; others declare that the film does not go far enough in extolling the patriotic uprising.

Two players stand out: Domenico Formato, as a youngster who attaches himself to a group of reform school escapees, and Gian Maria Volonte, as an Italian Army captain with an artificial hand who leads the main group of embattled citizens. Comment: tumultuous documentary.

PRINCE

The Man From the Diners' Club (now playing) Danny Kaye is in the title role as a mild-mannered office worker who becomes helplessly involved with girls and gangsters.

Foots Pulardos, played by Telly Savalas, plans to flee the country while out on bail for tax evasion. Having hocked his all, he's stymied for plane fare

KAYOED BY CURVY CARA: Danny Kaye watches Cara Williams flatten Telly Savalas in "The Man From the Diners' Club," now at the Prince.

until his girl friend, Sugar Pye, an ex-stripper, brilliantly suggests charging it to the Diners' Club. Kaye approves. Fools' application for a credit card and then discovers that he is a gangster. His efforts to retrieve the card make a hilarious film.

One of the funniest sequences is man vs. machine, as Danny becomes involved with an electronic records machine which can lead an experienced operator to any one of the 1,250,000 Diners' Club membership cards. His troubles in the film range from the trampoline to the blood circulator, the reducing machine and every other piece of gym equipment, including Cara Williams, as Sugar Pye, in the steam room.

Also in support are Martha Hyer, as Danny's patient fiancee, and comedienne Kay Stevens as an office associate. Comment: Danny Kaye, as whacky as ever.

CAFE COMIC TO STAR

In Pennington Show. Comedian - pantomimist Hal Cooper of Hightstown will star in the Pennington Players' production of "My Three Angels." The comedy opens this Friday at the Playbarn, West Franklin Avenue off Route 69.

Mr. Cooper, known for his "cafe singles," will be seen as Joseph, one of the three convicts employed by Monsieur Ducotel to repair his roof. He appeared in the same role several years ago in the Hightstown Theatre Guild production.

No newcomer to the theatre, Mr Cooper wrote, directed and acted in 19 Army plays for the 1st Air Force "Jamborees." He produced shows for the 1st Air command in Philadelphia and hooked talent for the fund-raising USO shows and War Bond rallies. A native New Yorker, he was a member of the Urban Players, a group specializing in plays for church organizations.

"My Three Angels" will be given at 8 30 this Friday and Saturday and again next weekend. Ticket reservations may be obtained by calling PE 7-0108.

SLICK CLICKS

"Critic's Choice" at Bucks. A slick, sophisticated drawing room comedy which has clicked on Broadway and Hollywood, is now clicking away again at the Bucks County Playhouse in New Hope.

Mindy Carson

Ira Levin's "Critic's Choice," co-starring Jan Murray and Mindy Carson, will be on the Playhouse stage through Saturday, May 25. Robert Moore, director of the comedy, has a cast which includes Jean Sullivan, Joseph Nichols, Harry Millard and Scott Hosbach. Clarke Dunham is the set designer.

In the play, Mr Murray portrays a New York drama critic who is faced with a Great Decision: should he or should he not, review his wife's first play? The magnitude of this dilemma sends him first to the bottle, and then into the arms of his first wife. Miss Carson plays the playwright who has to devise a happy last-act curtain for her private life, to save both her marriage and her play.

After this production, Michael Ellis will stage Howard Fast's first play, "The Crossing," a drama about George Washington and the Revolution.

IT'S NEW To Us

SHOPS LINE THE LANE At Hospital Fete. It's hard to tell which is the most entrancing — the piggie bank made from a white plastic Clorox bottle, a superb lemon gold mohair cardigan with daisies appliqued in bunches, the saucy cocktail apron with a cocktail napkin in each of its many pockets or the slab of oiled black walnut rubbed to set off an arrangement of flowers or fruit.

All will be for sale in the Lane of Shops at the Princeton Hospital Fete on Saturday, June 8, at Fitzpatrick Field.

The articles offered for sale in the lane's shops have been made by Princeton needlewomen and, because the lathe and the drill are no longer strictly masculine precincts, by Princeton craftswomen, too. Some women work alone, some, like the members of the Friendship Club and the group that meets weekly with Mrs. Charles Young, work together.

The products are uniformly professional, whether the final result is an apron made with invisible stitches or an exquisite little alabaster paperweight enclosing a mobile fractured marble (that is, a marble subjected to alternate frying and chilling.)

Needleworkers have made a wardrobe for a pair of 18-inch dolls, fashioning a red bulky sweater about four inches long, a kilt, a Chanel jacket suit, a terribly suave theatre coat and a lace-edged peignoir. Well. Who could resist?

For "knitting and flitting," there is an assortment of giddy beach bags, some trimmed with petitpoint, some with jewels and some with wide velvet ribbon insertions.

To match, at least in mood, there are such hats! We like a cone crown with a bunch of violets right on the very summit and a flat-crowned one with a wide fringed linen band—the fringe standing up—going all around. Hat will, hopefully, be under $5, and no two can possibly be alike.

Besides that frivolous cocktail apron, there will be a good, motherly terry cloth with pockets for baby powder and safety pins with plenty of absorbancy. Narrow denim stripes come together flawlessly in a coverall apron so artfully designed that it could be worn with very little underneath.

Princeton, of course, abounds. There is an orange pinny for a size two, with Class of '27 pockets, and string ties and placemats and, of course, little boy's black sweaters with orange "P."

An unusual garment for an infant has been made by running a drawstring along one edge of a simple oblong of organdy. Tie the ends around baby's neck like a big, poke his fat arms through a pair of half-moon windows cut into the organdy, and you can dress him up when it's diaper-only weather in the summertime.

Those craftswomen we mentioned have made a useful unfinished wooden piece which is a cross between a magazine stand, a sewing box and an end table. Basically, it's a carpenter's carryall with added drawers and an under shelf. You do the painting.

Two wooden salad bowls, inverted and held apart by a dowel, make a bird feeder that keeps out squirrels. Why? Because the curving dome of the top bowl is polished so highly that no squirrel could possibly slip between. So there.

What else? A hat that holds a cigarette package and change purse in its headband and has a pocket mirror inside, right next to your hairdo . . . grab-bag envelopes from India, Siam, and who knows where else? mailed to Princeton to provide a surprise and all those foreign stamps . . . two-inch sponge cubes covered with calico, for a young child's blocks . . . and a velvet covered scallop shell to hold your diamonds while you wash dishes. . . .

"SEQUENT" AT SCHWARTZ New Hendredon Furniture. Seeking a contemporary furniture with warmth, richness and the fine detail produced by skilled cabinet work, the Hendredon designers have emerged from the studio with "Sequent," a new line now on view at the Schwartz Furniture Company, 74 Carroll Place, New Brunswick.

Using Carpathian elm burl and American walnut, the designers of "Sequent" have made a series of dining, living and bedroom pieces which are as interesting to examine in close detail as they are to use casually in everyday living.

For example, there is a cylindrical book table with a radial matched top encircled by the elm burl. Eight molded, curved panels serve to conceal the books that you keep inside.

The lotus has inspired a small petal end table and a round cocktail table 39 inches in diameter. Supporting the cocktail table is a pedestal of six segments that flare out gracefully to a hexagonal base. The top is radial matched walnut, with an intaglio carved motif in the center, repeating the shape of the pedestal.

There is a particularly fine

Tapes Sewn Free!

It's worse than Christmas shopping, that dreadful time of the year when you have to sew name-tapes on every single sock, shirt and short that goes off to camp. Talk about Mother's Day!

With maternal mental health in mind, Allen's Children's Shop, 134 Nassau Street, has decided to take this burden from you. Go to Allen's, buy a minimum of $10 worth of merchandise and leave dull care behind.

Allen's will sew tapes on everything you buy in the store, absolutely free, absolutely free. All you have to do is make that $10 minimum, and this is no trouble at all, as you know from serving as purchasing agent in previous summers.

The time, gals, is now!

mobile server which doesn't look mobile at all because it comes right down to the floor Concealed casters do the rolling for you.

Closed, it looks like a chest. Open, it reveals a sub-top of cork which has been steeped in vinyl to make a practical, alcohol-proof serving area. The top opens out on each side, doubling the width. A cabinet under it all, has an adjustable shelf for the olives.

Among the larger pieces in the "Sequent" group is a graceful china cabinet, quite simple in outline, with clean rectangular panes of glass echoing the unadorned rectangular shape of the cabinet itself. There are glass shelves and interior lights to show off your finest collection.

In the same dining room, you'll want the extension table with its sweeping curved shape and its unusual hexagonal leg. The table is bordered with elm burl. Dining chairs have full cane backs with slim, intersecting ovale.

Upstairs in the bedroom, Schwartz is showing the triple dresser in the "Sequent" collection, a splendidly matched piece using elm burls for spectacular effect. Three small center drawers are flanked on each side by three standard drawers with intricate detail work in their framed panels. Two mirrors with slightly bowed sides give balance and proportion to this generous piece. Headboards display sweeping borders of burl framing the cane, or those narrow ovals used in the chairs.

One or two "Sequent" pieces are available in a peeky finish called "Verdet," is a pleasing transparent green which allows the wood grain to show through. In an accent piece like the small console with its eight-pointed elongated star, embellishing each door, the Verdet is particularly striking. This console, 28 inches long, may also be had in a four-door model 56 inches long.

"A" IN SEAMANSHIP

Cruise For Students. "University of the Seven Seas"—what a romantic name! Decks instead of a campus, deck chairs instead of bleachers, a fog-horn instead of the bell in Nassau Hall!

What we're talking about is a new, non-profit educational institution, incorporated three years ago in California to combine education with going around the world. We're ready to leave right now.

There are two global itineraries: the first semester being a 110-day cruise starting October 22 in New York, the second a 120-day cruise starting next February 11 in San Diego. For these, students will receive credit instruction from qualified college and faculty members from many countries. All courses have met the requirements of the California State Board of Education. And, of course, there will be field trips in every port of call.

Travelex, Inc., 195 Nassau, is the local port of call. Holland-America Line has been authorized to arrange for passage. If you want details, stop at Travelex and inquire.

". . . BUT MY DEAR, I ALWAYS USE A FRENCH SEAM!" As every skillful seamstress knows, it's the fine detail that makes the difference. Rosita Garullo, 32 Witherspoon Lane, puts her deft fingers to work on the sewing machine while her colleagues at Princeton Nursery School look on with a critical eye. The girls are sewing coutnrier doll clothes for the Princeton Hospital Fete Doll Clothes Contest. Mrs. Richard J. Hughes is the judge who will decide on those French seams. ing there was small evidence in the streets of the litter and filth which the rioters left in their wake.

Apology Offered. The Undergraduate Council passed a resolution last week, the text of which was forwarded to Mayor Patterson. Apologies were extended "to the Princeton community for the conduct displayed and the damage caused during the riot."

The resolution continued "We regret this destruction of property, and the irresponsible action by students of the University. Arrangements have been made for the undergraduates to pay the cost of the damages caused by the riot."

HOSPITAL MUST WAIT

Council Tables Request. At the suggestion of Mayor Henry Patterson, Borough Council decided Tuesday night that it needed more time to study the Princeton Hospital situation.

Council therefore voted unanimously to table the Zoning Board's approval of zoning variances for the hospital. The decision came after a lengthy question-and-answer exchange between Councilmen and Aldridge C. Smith, III, attorney for the hospital; John W. Kauffman, hospital administrator; George W. Conover, chairman of the hospital's board of trustees and Clifford Wolfe, architect.

The hospital wants to build a new unit—the so-called "J" unit—which will eventually be seven stories high and may rise to a possible ten in time. The seven-story unit would allow the hospital 325 beds, in contrast to the 176 it now has.

Although only two floors and a third partial floor for mechanical equipment would be built at first, the hospital wants to lay a foundation strong enough to accommodate 10 floors if they are needed, and certainly the seven floors. This is the problem that faces Borough Council.

Act for the Future? "Can this Council grant the height and yard variances that are needed," asked Mayor Patterson, "and thereby commit future council to hospital additions that won't be made for years?"

Gordon Griffin, Borough attorney, said that variances were valid so long as the ordinance itself remained unchanged.

Then the matter of parking came up, and for a while, cars and figures and parking places were added up and subtracted and commented upon with such interrupting overlays of confusion and vehemence that Mr. Griffin said, at one point: "I'm trying to isolate this disease . . ."

What finally emerged, after the germ had been isolated, was a set of figures which showed that the hospital would need 226 parking spaces for the 450 beds it might have, once the ten stories have been built, and that it will actually have 325 parking spaces.

Or so it seemed.

Where? In addition to parking and the legality of acting for future councils, the question of site proved vexing. Councilmen Joseph Wood and William Walker were particularly concerned.

Mr. Wood asked why the hospital didn't build on some other site, and Mr. Wolfe said that, to start from scratch and build a brand-new hospital, would cost about $10,000,000, exclusive of land cost, the cost of a new Medical Arts building and a new nurses' home. He said that it would cost about $4,000,000 to provide the present hospital with 325 beds.

Mr. Walker expressed concern about the traffic generated by an expanded hospital.

"This is a business, an industry," Mr. Walker said. "If it is permitted to expand here, it will be the biggest traffic generator in Princeton. The hospital serves a vast community and its staff and patients will draw people from all the outlying districts."

Mr. Smith said the trustees of the hospital would not "over-expand," and he said he hoped, himself, for some kind of public transportation that would relieve the traffic problem.

On to Borough Hall. Council also passed the ordinance allowing $5,000 for architects' studies in connection with Borough Hall, although the two Democratic candidates for Council, Joseph Strayer and Paul Baldeagle protested. Mr. Strayer on the grounds that consolidation might come along, and Mr. Baldeagle because no definite plans and location had been presented.

Mayor Patterson emphasized, as did Mr Walker, that the money is only for space planning, not for actual building plans. Richard Chorlton and Henry Jandl, the architects, have made space studies to show how many square feet (about 21,000) might be needed for a new Borough Hall, but not what kind of building it would be.

In regard to consolidation, Mayor Patterson said that Council had an obligation to plan for what would be needed if consolidation did not go through. "We need to know what a new hall would cost and to lay the money aside, so we won't be caught by surprise," he stated.

Mr. Walker pointed out that, if consolidation were to be accepted, the Borough's plans could serve as ground studies, so that the job would not have to be done all over again.

Fund Asks Building. The United Community Fund asked Council to give it first chance at the Witherspoon-Green building that now houses the engineering department, once a new Borough Hall is built. The Fund would like to house its various agencies there.

However, Council decided it could not commit the Borough at this time. "We hope we can turn the building over to the community, perhaps for teen-age recreation, or a center for charity agencies," said Mayor Patterson, "but it would be a mistake to decide now."

Council also intrduced an ordinance to improve Hodge Road, including curbs and widening to 30 feet. Price $39,500, the Borough to pay for widening, the Borough and property-owners half-and-half on curbs. Public hearing will be held June 11.

DR SUMMERS RETIRES

From Active Practice. Senior ranking member of Princeton Hospital's Medical and Dental Staff, Dr. Alfred D. Summers will retire from active practice on June 1, according to an announcement made this week by John W. Kauffman, hospital administrator. Dr. Summers, for many years a leading obstetrician in the community, gave up his obstetrical practice in 1960 but has continued as staff physician for Merwick, the hospital's long-term nursing and convalescent unit. (For news of his activities in another field see picture, page 35.)

For 37 years a practicing physician in Princeton, Dr. Summers has been serving as staff physician at Merwick since it opened in August, 1957. Dr. Benjamin M. Wright has been appointed to succeed Dr. Summers at Merwick, in addition to continuing his own practice as a member of the Princeton Medical Group.

After interning at Mercer Hospital in Trenton, Dr. Summers came to Princeton in 1926. He is the only current member of the active medical staff to have practiced in the original, old frame farmhouse, "Carnahan House," which was Princeton's first hospital. In his years of practice, he has seen the hospital grow from 20 beds to its present 196 bed capacity.

Dr. Summers attended the University of Michigan as an undergraduate and also received his M.D. degree there. During World War I and prior to starting medical training, he served in the American Ambulance Corps and was sent to Italy to join the 8th Italian Army in 1918, where he and the late Ernest Hemingway were assigned to the same battalion.

After a number of years as a general practitioner, Dr. Summers took special training at Margaret Hague Maternity Hospital in Jersey City and, from 1939, devoted his practice in Princeton to obstetrics.

When he gave up his obstetrical practice in 1960 he estimated that he had introduced approximately 4,000 children to the world and had become an "obstretrical grandfather" many times over since a number of those children in later years returned to have him deliver their children.

Dr. Wright, who succeeds Dr. Summers in the Merwick post, joined the hospital's associate staff in 1957. He was advanced to membership on the attending medical staff in 1962. A graduate of Yale, he received his M.D. degree from Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons.

After interning at Strong Memorial Hospital in Rochester, N. Y., Dr. Wright served his residency at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center in New York. Dr. Wright, a member of the Princeton Medical Group since 1957, is certified by the American Board of Internal Medicine.

Doll Clothes Ready?

The four-year-old who makes a doll dress by hand using all ten thumbs will not be in competition with the professional eighth-grader who uses a sewing machine because contestants in the Hospital Fete Doll Clothes contest will be grouped according to age.

There will be three divisions, pre-school through eighth grade. Mrs. Richard J. Hughes is the judge who will decide.

The contest will be held in the children's section of the Fete, which is scheduled for Saturday, June 8, at Fitzpatrick Field. Separate competitions will be held in each division to determine the prettiest and most original dolls.

TO BUILD ON 206

Pearson Has Plans. A two-story office building has been planned by Harold Pearson for the vacant land on Route 206 that lies between The Rug Mart on the north and Princeton Laboratories, Inc., on the south.

The Township Planning Board gave its conditional approval to the project Monday night after a hearing attended by several property-owners in the vicinity who believe that the area should not be built up any more than it now is. Mr. Pearson's property lies in the Township's B-2 business zone.

According to Mr. Pearson's plans, the 12,000 square foot building would have a ground floor entrance on Route 206 and a second floor entrance on Mt. Lucas Road. (The site is backed, on the east, by a sheer cliff.)

Parking was the chief concern of those who spoke at the hearing. Mr. Pearson agreed to lay parking lots at the front of his new building, off Route 206, and at the rear of the new structure and the present Rug Mart, off Mt. Lucas Road.

LICENSE SUSPENDED

For Drunken Driving. Patrick J. Kelleher, 45, 176 Parkside Drive, was issued an automatic $225 fine and two-year suspension of his license Monday, after Borough Magistrate Theodore T. Tams, Jr., found him guilty of drunken driving. Mr. Kelleher denied the charge.

Robinson B. Smith, 17, Newlin Road, paid a $5 fine for careless driving. Miss Catherine E. Sadlon, 69, 22 Green Shadows Lane, was fined $15. She pleaded not guilty.

GOING FISHING AT THE PCD FAIR: Libet Johnson of Edgerstonne Road, flanked by mesmerized observers, tosses a ping-pong ball at the target of small goldfish bowls at the Princeton Country Day School annual fair last Saturday. The object: to land the ball in a bowl and thereby win the fish therein. Despite the chilly, damp weather, "Camelot"-themed fair was highly successful, according to Fair sponsors. (Staff Photo)

WATCH OVER BIRMINGHAM

By Clergymen Here. Princeton's clergymen are stirring to action, keyed by the racial tumult in Birmingham:

● A Negro and a white pastor from Birmingham have been invited to conduct a community service on Wednesday, May 29, in the University Chapel, sponsored by the Princeton Pastors' Association. Plans formed by the Rev. Robert P. Montgomery of the Westminster Foundation and his committee include a procession of clergy and lay leaders, a dialogue sermon between the two southerners and music by the choirs of the participating churches.

"We want to try to focus attention on the whole race problem, looking at it in the light of the Christian faith," the Rev. Mr. Montgomery said.

● Dr. James I. McCord, Princeton Seminary president now attending the Presbyterian General Assembly in Des Moines, will petition the Stated Clerk, the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, to contact Presbyterian clergy in the south asking their leadership in reconciliation.

"Up to this point, the churches have done nothing," said senior David Cassie, chairman of the Seminary students' committee.

● Perhaps no Princeton resident is as closely concerned with Birmingham as the Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson, pastor of the integrated Witherspoon Presbyterian Church. His grandfather was for 30 years minister of Birmingham's influential 16th Street Baptist Church. The Rev. Mr. Anderson will depart for Birmingham after the close of the Assembly on May 22.

"I suppose the most significant thing in my life is doing the work of reconciliation. This is the meaning of what I would like to be a part of in Birmingham. . . . This has been the thrust of my ministry," he said. He added, "I think Birmingham will be with us for a long, long time." (For other thoughts of Mr. Anderson's, see News of the Churches, page 38).

● Six hundred New Jersey Episcopal clergymen and laymen endorsed a resolution of support proposed by the Rev. Rowland Cox, chaplain of Princeton's Proctor Foundation, at the diocesan convention last week.

● Rabbi Everett Gendler of the Princeton Jewish Center reported on Wednesday to the Princeton Pastors' Association on his mission in Birmingham last week as head of the delegation of 10 rabbis sent by the Rabbinical Assembly.

"We are greatly concerned about the Birmingham situation," said the Rev. Dr. Donald M. Meisel, president of the Association, "and we are deciding what constructive action we can take."

● The Rev. Walter Wagner, executive director of the Rockefeller Fund for Theological Education, is lending his personal support as liaison with faculty groups from the Ivy League colleges in the Middle Atlantic area, who stand ready to join the demonstrations in Birmingham.

● Also working with college groups are the Rev. James Sessions, chaplain of the Wesley Foundation, who is in touch with Chaplain William Coffin of Yale, and Dr. Malcolm Diamond, assistant professor of religion at Princeton University.

● Seminary students, ready to demonstrate in the south if needed, have arranged for a lecture by James Farmer, head of CORE, on 8 p.m. next Wednesday, May 22, at the campus center auditorium. James Farmer is responsible for the training of participants in the Birmingham demonstrations.

Next Move Awaited. Whether or not Princeton groups join in the action depends, according to Rabbi Gendler and the Rev. Mr. Wagner, on the court ruling now pending on the two sets of mayors and officials claiming office in Birmingham. The most recently elected mayor is considered a moderate, and if the court rules in his favor, "my understanding is," says the Rev. Mr. Wagner, "the strategy group doesn't want to embarass the new mayor with all these new demonstrations."

Rabbi Gendler comments, "Birmingham is really a very ugly situation. The Negroes have exercised enormous restraint and they have not responded to enormous provocation . . . Curiously, the news coverage in the Birmingham papers has yet to reach the front pages."

He adds, "Neither the current government nor the so-called moderate government just elected have been part of the truce agreement. This was negotiated by a Senior Citizens' Committee—80 influential men, the majority of whom are even now nameless." He said that the rabbis, more or less kept under wraps by the strategy group of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference during the truce, addressed church groups, assuring them of support.

The Rev. Dr. McCord, writing in TOWN TOPICS in January, commented "The Church's influence on the thought and life of the nation . . . may have actually declined. And if this

Artist's View of Undergraduate Dormitories
PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

TO COMMEMORATE A FRIENDSHIP: One of the buildings in Princeton's new dormitory quadrangle commemorates a friendship which began in secondary school and has continued through all the decades since that time. The building, shown in the foreground of this architect's rendition, is Lourie-Love Hall, named for its co-donors, Donald B. Lourie and George H. Love. Both men were members of the class of 1922 and, before that, classmates at Exeter. Both are Charter Trustees of the University. The dormitory will be on the south side of College Road opposite Wilcox Hall (shown here from the rear). Clockwise, other buildings are: an unnamed dormitory; the class of 1911 dormitory; class of 1940 dormitory and class of 1942 dormitory. Members of the classes provided funds to construct these dormitories.

Topics Of The Town

is so, then the reason must surely be the Church's silence in areas of great social need, and her spirit of caution rather than the spirit which she once had when she turned the world upside down."

Princeton churchmen have begun to move.

CONSTRUCTION BEGINS

On Undergraduate Dormitories. Construction work has begun on Princeton University's five-building, undergraduate dormitory complex on Goldie Field off College Road.

To cost a total of $2,300,000 the five dormitories will have a combined floor area of 95,512 square feet and will accommodate 324 students and three faculty members. They will vary in size from two to four stories and have been designed to harmonize with the older, nearby gothic structures. Four of the five have been named.

Three of the buildings will be named Class of 1940 Hall, Class of 1941 Hall and Class of 1942 Hall. The other will be known as Lourie-Love Hall in honor of Donald B. Lourie of Winnetka, Ill., and George H. Love of Pittsburgh, members of the Class of 1922. Located opposite Wilcox Hall, it will commemorate their close personal friendship since secondary school days.

Both entered Princeton from Phillips Exeter Academy and roomed together throughout their four undergraduate years. At Princeton, Mr. Lourie, now chairman of the Quaker Oats Company, played for three years on the football and track teams, in addition to being a member of the Senior Council, president of the Varsity Club and class president in his sophomore and senior years.

He was named to Walter Camp's last All-America team, as a junior. Mr. Love was a member of the freshman crew, Varsity Club, Senior Council, and manager of football. Today he is chairman of the Consolidation Coal Co. and the Chrysler Corporation.

The dormitories will have masonry walls with an exterior finish of brick and limestone. The interiors will have wooden parquet floors, painted concrete ceilings and plaster walls. Filled courts, with one higher than the next, will provide an interesting variation in grade.

BICYCLIST IS STRUCK

On Mt. Lucas Road. A boy on a bicycle was hit by a car and four other traffic accidents occurred in the Township last week. As might almost be expected, the Kingston Bridge was involved in three of them.

William O'Dea, 12, 41 Red Hill Road, riding his bicycle on Mt. Lucas Road, was knocked to the roadway Monday when he swerved to the left into the path of a car driven by Karl W. Angel, 34, 549 Jefferson Road. The mishap took place as Mr. Angel tried to pass the cyclist. Both were traveling in the same direction, police said. They issued no charges.

George R. Jones, 28, Walnut Lane, Trenton, overturned on Cherry Hill Road early Sunday morning near the intersection of Ridgeview Road. He was uninjured.

According to the police, Mr. Jones was driving between 45 and 50 miles per hour when he failed to negotiate a slight curve. His car hit a dirt bank, bounced back to the center of the road and overturned. He was issued a summons for careless driving.

The oft-struck Kingston Bridge was hit at 1:30 Saturday morning by Dorothy F. Huber, 23, of Knoxville, Tenn. Like many strangers to Princeton, she was unfamiliar with the sharp curve leading to the narrow bridge. She eiled this to the Township police.

Her car skidded on the wet roadway and was a total loss. Mrs. Huber and a passenger, Miss Judith Wooten, 20, of Long Branch, were slightly injured.

A few hours earlier, at 10.30 p.m., Alvin J. Salkind, 35, of 49 Palmer Square had skidded into the same bridge. He was uninjured.

At 5.44 Monday morning, cars operated by John J. Hegarty, 40, Cold Soil Road, and David Voorhees, 28, 9 Carnation Place, Trenton, collided at the western approach to the bridge. Neither man was injured but Mr. Hegarty was ticketed for failure to keep to the right.

DR. SILVER TO SPEAK

On Handicapped Children. Next Wednesday, May 22, the Central New Jersey section of the State Association for Brain Injured Children will meet at 8 p.m. in the Community Park School auditorium. Dr. Archie A. Silver of the New York University Medical College will be the speaker.

His talk will cover the problems of perpetually handicapped children, including case histories on follow-up studies and new methods of treatment. Dr. Silver is psychiatrist in charge of the children's section of the mental hygiene clinic at Bellevue Hospital, as well as associate clinical professor at New York University.

Thomas A. Jones, 73 Brookstone Drive, is chairman of the section. Sources of help for the brain injured child are in the process of compilation by the association. Information in the listing will include individual tutors, educational therapists, summer camps, private day and boarding schools and diagnostic centers.

RACIAL PROBLEM TOPIC

This Thursday At Seminary. Dr. Edgar Brookes, a South African Liberal and a leader of the intellectual opposition to the Verwoerd regime, will speak on "The Racial Problem In South Africa Today," this Thursday at 6:45 in the Seminary's Campus Center auditorium.

Professor of political science at the University of Natal, he has represented the Blacks as senator in the South African parliament. This year he is teaching at Duke University.

"Civil Liberty In South Africa" is the title of one of Dr. Brookes' books, published in collaboration with J. B. Macaulay in 1958. Dr. Brookes has been tarred and feathered by Afrikaner students for his racial and political views.

PLAY TO BE GIVEN

At Family Service Meeting. "Broken Circle," a play by Nora Stirling, will be presented by the Community Players at the annual meeting of the Family Service Agency. The concert reading will begin at 8 this Tuesday in the Seminary's campus center auditorium.

The cast includes Mrs. Arthur Fentijn, Garrison Ellis, Irving Van Zandt and Don Warnock, with Loren Zissman directing. The play deals with a family using the Agency's counselling service.

A panel will disuss the play and the work of the Princeton agency. Questions from the audience will be answered. Agency board members on the panel will be Bernard Barenholtz and A. C. Reeves Hicks.

Also scheduled to participate are Mrs. Elizabeth Trimble, the agency's executive director; Dr. Helen Daniels, consulting psychiatrist; and Miss Mildred Kaplan.

Following refreshments, the annual meeting will be held. The Agency provides those in the United Fund area with confidential consultation by professionally trained counsellors.

Riot A Threat to Safety.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

When respect for the rights and property of others no longer has any meaning to men who are supposedly of a high intellectual caliber, there is something basically wrong with our society. This demonstration of an utter disregard for others in the form of an ugly, rioting mob that surged through Princeton late Monday night, May 6, causing untold damage and awakening half the population with its commotion, should cause many people to stop and consider just what are the accomplishments of the mind of man apart from a strong moral and spiritual orientation such as that which once typified this, one of the world's most brilliant universities.

For the citizens of this Borough to demand that justice be done and that those responsible for the damage, the disturbance and the serious threat to human life and property be adequately punished is not unreasonable. If the laws of this nation which were written to protect human rights are to be upheld, then the residents of Princeton have every right to expect that university students be treated the same as anyone else and that when they have willfully broken laws that affect others, that the full penalty of the law be brought to bear upon them.

Unless the university and borough authorities take strong measures to deal with the offenders in this disgrace, the safety and security of every resident of Princeton will be seriously threatened.

Rioting No Claim to Fame.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Congratulations to TOWN TOPICS for what appears to be a fair and accurate report of the recent student riots. Fortunately I was not a spectator during the rioting, but on the following day there was an incident which I found most disturbing.

Stopping at my favorite newsstand for a paper, I learned from the owner that the afternoon editions had been immediately sold out to University students; indeed, some of these youths still lingered at the newsstand, inquiring about later editions and speculating on the amount of publicity their actions (or those of friends) would receive.

Early in the evening I again saw a cluster of youths around the same newsstand. Considering the social, economic and intellectual background of these young men, one could indeed wonder at their choice of such a dubious claim to fame.

Progress Report Asked.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is the text of an open letter to the Borough Council:

"The joint study of coordinating the functions of Princeton Borough and Princeton Township has now been going on for about a year and presumably progress of some kind has been made, even though Mr. Dilley's appointment as chairman was only recently announced. There are citizens in both municipalities who would like to hear what actually has been accomplished so far.

"With this in mind, I would like to suggest that some kind of summary report be made to the public before summer is upon us and disrupting vacations make coordination and cooperation more difficult than ever. I fully realize that there can be no conclusions at this point but any information as to procedure, meetings, statistics collected, etc. would be much appreciated by the many citizens who are following this question with interest."

ESTHER H. PALMER

Error Corrected.

To the Editor of Town Topics:

I would like to point out an error in the round-up of the Midget League on page 36 in your May 9 issue. The Phillies are so far unbeaten.

Editor's Note: To Phillies player Johnny Peterson and his teammates, TOWN TOPICS extends apologies for the unauthorized defeat, hopes that their current mark of 1.000 will serve as an example for their National League namesakes.

Thanks from the PTA.

SEVEN STEPS TO EXPERT

Contrary to popular belief, rug cleaning is not a simple do-it-yourself process. Rugs can represent a substantial amount of your home furnishings' investment. Careful home care, proper handling, expert cleaning and repairing give added dividends in longer wear as well as greater beauty.

This is how our rug cleaning experts — with over 30 years experience in this field — handle your investment.

1. When your call is received, a pick-up of your rug is scheduled at your convenience. (Up to four men are available, and one of two trucks or station wagon will call for it, depending upon the rug's size.)

2. All men are trained to roll rugs and move furniture when necessary. Respect and care for your personal belongings are uppermost in their minds. (We have complete insurance coverage in case of damage or breakage.) At the time of pick-up, you receive a numbered receipt for all rugs, and each rug is tagged with your name, number and list of services required.

3. Upon entering our own plant (your visit is welcome at any time), your rug is measured, dusted, spot-cleaned, and then completely cleaned as soon as possible. The type of cleaning it receives depends on the kind of rug. There are approximately seven different processes we can employ. Whether your rug is a fine, delicate tapestry or a cotton bath mat, each gets its correct process.

4. Drying is just as important as washing. We have a large dry-room where rugs can be hung full-length or laid flat, with automatic heat control and proper air circulation, or for sunshine drying, large lawn areas are available.

5. After drying, rugs are inspected before they are rolled, wrapped, packed or placed in storage. If additional attention is required, your rug can be re-washed, or spotted to assure the best possible results.

6. While awaiting delivery, rugs are kept in storage tubes. These tubes keep them free from dust and not in contact with other rugs — thus preventing crushing.

7. Your rug is delivered to you at your convenience. Rugs and pads are expertly laid if requested. Pads are trimmed where necessary.

There is a nominal charge for laying rugs. This is not included in the cleaning price because most rugs are not laid by our men. This charge is made separately because a hidden charge would not be fair or ethical.

THREE ATTEND MEETINGS

On Birth Control. Three members of the Planned Parenthood Association of the Mercer Area have returned from meetings in Washington, D. C., held by various Planned Parenthood groups and their affiliated physicians.

Those who attended are Mrs. John Davies, president of the Mercer group; Mrs. Elmer Alpert, delegate, and Dr. Robert Purcell, staff physician.

Delegates heard Dr. Alan Guttmacher, president of Planned Parenthood, urge the organization to become nationwide in scope, including all minority groups as "working partners in family planning." He noted a 30 percent increase in clinic load in 1961, and a 50 percent increase in 1962 across the country, and said he believed it was due chiefly to use of the pill, Enovid.

The pill was widely dis-

RITES AT ST. PAUL'S

To Consecrate Church. St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, dedicated in 1957, was consecrated on Saturday by Bishop George W. Ahr of Trenton.

Consecration differs from simple blessing in that the building is indelibly marked and may never be transferred to common or profane uses. Only two other churches in the diocese of Trenton have been consecrated: St. Catherine's in Spring Lake and Immaculate Conception in Trenton.

According to the Rev. Edward C. Henry, pastor, the present church replaced an older sanctuary which had been consecrated in 1879.

Taking part in the 9 a.m. ceremony were Fr. Henry, the Rev. William J. Carton and the Rev. Salvatore J. Livigni, assistants at St. Paul's; the Rev. Joseph Kenny of Wilmington, Del., a weekend assistant at the church; and the Rev. Robert P. Murray, a former parish assistant now serving as director of the Aquinas Foundation.

Also, the Rev. Donald M. Endebrock, St. Ann's; the Rev. Carl A. Wagner, diocesan director of vocations; the Rev. Joseph R. Brozowski, Our Lady of Peace, Fords, and the Rev. Roger Nelipowitz, Immaculate Conception, Trenton.

cussed, Dr. Guttmacher said, as a result of Dr. John Rock's book, "The Time Has Come" in which Dr. Rock, a Catholic physician, discusses what needs to be done in the field of birth control to cope with increasing population.

The Planned Parenthood Association of the Mercer Area is located at 202 Academy Street, Trenton. It offers premarital consultation for engaged couples, infertility information, cancer smears, educational films, exhibits and literature as well as birth control information and supplies. HEARING SCHEDULED

On Library Bond Issue. At the regular Township Committee meeting Monday night at 8, a public hearing will be held on the proposed library bond issue.

Proceeds from the sale of bonds would enable the Township to buy its share of the Wiggins-Witherspoon library site, 58 percent of the purchase price of $92,000. The percentage is based on use of the library by Township residents.

In a statement issued by Mrs. Ansley Coale, president of the board of trustees of the Library, she comments on the results of two years of searching for a site: "When we first heard the Lahiere-Kane property might be available, we worried about placing a library off the main stream in something of a cul de sac. Remembering the Borough's reluctance to part with its vitally necessary central parking . . . the possibility of a swap was suggested.

"The proposed realignment of Jackson-Wiggins Street will make the corner accessible to cars from many directions. Business people and school children can reach the corner readily. The site is in the center of community activity night and day.

Criteria for the new library site were studied with the assistance of Joseph Wheeler, library consultant, and Neil Harlow, dean of the library school of New Jersey at Rutgers University.

Members of the library's advisory committee are William Dix, director of Firestone Library; Kenneth Gapp, director of Speer Memorial Library; and Roger McDonough, director of the New Jersey State Library.

JUNIOR MUSEUM PLANNED

To Feature Exhibits. The Princeton Junior Museum has been formally incorporated, and John Martin, president of the organization has announced.

Borough Council has made available temporary headquarters for the museum on the third floor of Borough Hall. The museum will provide exhibits and activities for area youngsters in the fields of art history and science.

It is hoped that the organization will be able to schedule its first exhibition and activities for the fall. Plans are well under way and await only the appointment of a director for the group.

In addition to Prof. Martin, officers for the organization include Mrs. Lyman Spitzer, vice-president; Mrs. William J. Baumol, secretary; and Mrs. Salomon Bochner, treasurer. The board of trustees consists of Miss Margharetta Barr, Miss Dorothy Compton, Mrs. Marvin Goldberger, Prof. Glenn L. Jepsen, Miss Frances Jones, Prof. Sheldon Judson, Lawrence N. Kerr, Mrs. H. W. Levenentz, Dr. Jeanelt Munro and Prof. Lionel Rehhun.

Others who have contributed to the project are Philip Luth, Mrs. Carol Stoddard and Mrs. Homer Thompson. Those wishing further information may call Prof. Judson at WA 5-5899 or Prof. Martin at WA 1-8880.

THREE SHOWS ON VIEW

On Campus, In Town. At the University Art Museum, drawings by Fabio Rieti and Douglas Pederson make an interesting exhibition of good contrast.

Fabio Rieti, son of the Italian composer Vittorio Rieti, is an American citizen who is now living in France where he is working on ceramic murals for the French government. His drawings are done with great technical skill.

He uses clear line. Line in point, line against line in a stelated effect or line in pizzicato. His drawings of children, in pure line, are simple and full of expression.

One lovely big-eyed child looks out of a picture against the background of her mother's sweatered torso. The child is lucidly drawn; the sweater, however, is drawn in minute boucle' lines, and if you strain your eyes, you can see that instead of knit-one, purl-one, the artist has stitched a message "nut en francais."

"Wave" is a fascinating contrast of variety of line, the sum total giving a strong sense of a wave rolling in, breaking with its topside a mass of fizzing foam. "Composition of Two Women," done in horizontal line, reminds one of a scene caught unawares through a venetian blind.

Man In Atom Age. Very different in style are the stark, severe drawings of Douglas Pederson who deals in pure black on white or visa versa. The figure or element of figure which he uses as his subject is skeletal man, man reduced to simplest terms, atomic man.

A figure may express torture or horrible fear; a piece of backbone may be drawn in dignity. Mr. Pederson explains that fears are fears in any age; dignity is dignity. The reasons for them vary but man is ever reduceable by the emotion or quality to the very marrow of his bones. Once an English major, he changed to painting as he preferred the "international language." As he put it, he had always felt cheated reading Beaudelaire in English, but he was never cheated by Michaelangelo." He has chosen this language to comment on our society.

Kalen's Now on the Square. The new Art Gallery and Frame Shop on Palmer Square West is the first branch of an old Trenton firm which has operated since 1886. For its first show in Princeton, Kalen's exhibits paintings by a young Frenchman, Count Regis De-Bonvier de Cachard.

While traveling in Italy, the Kalens ran into this artist on a Venetian street. Under his arm were paintings which struck them as bein "different, vibrant and uncommercial." From this chance encounter, they have become his agents and have a large collection of his work.

de Cachard has strayed far from his native French scene, "Montmartre," with its bright umbrellas and the boats in the "Seine." In '62 he painted Los Angeles with a continual flow of orange red light against dark skyscrapers. In '63 there was "Reverie sur New York" in blue forms and in between times, Venice.

"San Marco Pigeons" shows him working more with abstract forms, yet it is clear in feeling, full of the movement of birds startled by a tourist's laughter or a tidbit thrown, but not too startled to flutter down again and fight for the grab. Paintings are a little hard to see in this gallery as the walls are already active with frames, but the window spaces are excellent for showing painting to advantage.

For The Garden. William Daley and William Parry, both teachers at the Philadelphia Museum College of Art, have garden ceramics on view at Gallery 100 until May 26th. William Daley, whose work makes up the major part of this show, was commissioned to do a symbolic divider screen for the IBM pavilion at the Seattle World's Fair.

A similar section of screen is shown here, a faddered form with fired terra cotta panels, designed in the square and touched with color. It's a new and intriguing idea for a garden. His free-form plaques are made for recessing in walls or as a backdrop for a fountain.

A planter, shaped like the Leaning Tower of Pisa, appears to be a modern strawberry pot.

Two-Tiered Fountain. Mr. Parry's plaques are harder to understand and harder to hang in a gay garden.

One, entitled "Episode," suggests a warning siren with figures . . . scurrying away? falling to pieces at the seams? We can't quite tell. His free form fountain, small and self-motored, is two-tiered and can be used inside or out, and when not founting, would make a fine double-decked bird bath.

Gay Sculpture. Small sculpture pieces by Clem Renzi are hardly garden pieces but would be cheerful about the house. They are sculpted by a man whose philosophy we like.

His titles, "C'est La Vie," "Walking in the Wind" convey joy in life which we find refreshing. "Common Bonds" is a chorus of gremlin-like characters who are being launched into the world, their eyes wide with wonder and expectancy. Though small, these are not slight pieces; they are a delightful surprise!

TO HONOR STOKOWSKI

At Westminster Exercises. Leopold Stokowski will receive an honorary doctor of fine arts degree at the commencement exercises of Westminster Choir College Friday, May 31. The ceremony will take place in the Princeton University Chapel at 10.30.

A native of London, Mr. Stokowski came to this country in 1909 as conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony. From 1912 to 1938, he was music dircetor of the Philadelphia Orchestra and he has performed with nearly all the major orchestras of Europe.

Dr. Lee H. Bristol, Jr. president of Westminster, said "The Choir College wishes to pay tribute to what Mr. Stokowski has done not only in music, but in furthering a greater understanding of the interrelation among all the fine arts, especially with young people." Dr. Bristol noted that the conductor directed a dedicatory concert at Westminster 29 years ago, making the award "doubly appropriate."

The Rev. Charles C. Noble, dean of the chapel at Syracuse University, will be the guest speaker at the 34th annual exercises. A graduate of Williams College in 1921, he was ordained as a minister of the Methodist Church two years later.

The graduation ceremony will include a red-robed procession of the entire student body into the Great Choir of the chapel. The student body will sing with the graduating class "Sun of My Soul" and "Anthem of Dedication" by Warren Martin, musical director of the college.

The entire congregation will join in the singing of Vaughn Williams' setting of "Old Hundreth" with three trumpets and organ. Dr. Alexander McCurdy, chairman of the organ department, will be the organist and Mr. Martin will conduct the performance.

PLANS COMPLETED

For Flower Show. The Hopewell Valley Garden Club has completed arrangements for its spring flower and hobby show to take place Friday from 2 to 9 in Fellowship Hall of the Hopewell Presbyterian Church.

Based on the theme "I'm From New Jersey—The Garden State," the program will include 12 exhibition classes. In addition to regular features, club members will display their own handiwork and collections ranging from coins and pitchers to shells and paintings.

Mrs. Thurland B. Farr and Mrs. Oscar Owen will be in charge of a hobby sales section and a sales table. Work by club members will be displayed on consignment and may be purchased. Tea will be served in the afternoon and the show is open to the public at a small charge.

GOING BACK in Town Topics

FIVE YEARS AGO

TOWN TOPICS, May 15, 1958: Question of the Week was, "Would you like to be on the first space ship to the moon?" Said one swinging cat, "Bop" Regan, an advertising artist: "Yea, man, like it's the utmost, furthermost and outermost. I wouldn't mind going the distance. Every time I dig those crazy beams, I say that's the place for me. Like I'm ready to blast off. Lead me to your launching pad, Pops."

Princeton in 1958 was feeling no bad bruises from the recession which had hit the country. But "simply to improve business in general," merchants were sponsoring special sales days under the corny, but apparently affective, heading, "You Auto Buy Now."

Instead of using the limp-pun slogan to concentate exclusvely on auto sales, however, Princeton merchants were using it to promote everything including wine and roses. At that, the dreadful motto was preferable to having food stores use one like "Lettuce Meat Often." Or pharmacies say, "See What We Drug In," or bar owners plead, "Why Not Rum In Anisette For A While?"

In May, 1958, TOWN TOPICS asked: "When are our Borough leaders going to get the State Highway Department to eliminate the ridiculous traffic hazard at the three-way intersection of Nassau Street, University Place and Mercer Street? . . . Why not give Mercer a brief green light by itself, then give University a longer geen by itself? And why not permit right turns on red—after a careful look? In May, 1963, the questions still stand.

TEN YEARS AGO

TOWN TOPICS, May 17, 1953: Paraphrasing Reatrice Lillie, a Cleveland Lane matriarch reported "there are reptiles at the bottom of my garden." Seems her gardener had come on an unusual species of hardy perennial in the form of a small alligator.

The 'gator, it turned out, had been a present to a family on Library Place six weeks earlier but had immediately crawled away to ease the neighborhood. No one had known what had become of him until the Florida-like temperatures brought him out of hiding.

Raymond Heckman, night clerk at the Nassau Inn, had laid down a barrage of inkwell, ashtray and stapler in the direction of a hooded, armed robber who had invaded the lobby at 4 a.m. Unhurt and undeterred, the robber had jumped the desk, shot thrice to open the till, made off with $88.

The Playhouse was reeling off "Man On A Tightrope," a melodrama about the attempt of an old-time Slovakian circus troupe to get through the Iron Curtain. Theatre-goers were advised to "Czech this one."

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

TOWN TOPICS, May 13, 1948: There was a fire trap in nearby Jamesburg. Firemen there, tired of being hindered by fire buffs, set off a false alarm, raced their trucks down a narrow street and roped off a section where they were supposed to go into action. When a number of eager "helpers" burst the barriers, they got summoned before the local Solomon and told that a repitition would mean $25 and a spell in the cooler.

In the same issue, there was this note to ex-servicemen: "The airport on the Somerville Road has just been approved to provide flight instruction under the G. I. Bill, thus enabling veterans to become pilots at the expense of Sam, Sam, the Avuncular Man."

WE HEREBY DEDICATE

Community Park. In a simple, brief daytime ceremony "so the kids can take part," Community Park School will be dedicated on Thursday, June 6. Township schools will close for the year on June 18, and 8th grade graduation exercises from Valley Road will be held at 7:30 on that day.

At the last School Board meeting Dr. John McKenna, superintendent, and various members of the board sketched out the possible future growth of the Township system—working on the assumption that voters would approve the Littlebrook-Riverside expansion.

The Board does not plan to enlarge Community Park. The next school to grow will probably be Johnson Park. The enlargement of Valley Road is "in the realm of possibility" although that school is even now violating state law in its land-building ratio, the Board said.

Valley Road is now entirely seventh and eighth grade. If Community Park has to expand, its sixth grade might be moved across the street to Valley Road. And, if crowded conditions in Princeton High School, expected to begin in 1967-68, were extreme, the Township's ninth grade might be thrown back into Valley Road also.

Dr. McKenna said that a "small elementary school" consisting of kindergarten and a few other grades will operate in Valley Road next fall. The enclave will remain until the Riverside addition has been completed, Dr. McKenna said.

CASSEROLE A L'EGLISE

Churchwomen Staff Gourmet Booth. Presbyterian women from Princeton, Kingston and Lawrenceville churches will unite in the preparation of delicacies for the Gourmet Booth at the Princeton Hospital Fete.

The Gourmet Booth will be a feature of the annual Fete, to be held this year on Saturday, June 8, at Fitzpatrick Field. The event raises more than $25,000 a year for Princeton Hospital.

Contributions to the booth will also be made by Presbyterian women from Cranbury, Dutch Neck, Pennington, Hopewell, Hightstown, Kendall Park and Plainsboro.

There will be special casseroles for sale, hors d'oeuvres from private recipes, home-made preserves. In addition, the Gourmet Booth will have a Recipe Grabbag full of everybody's favorite recipes for everything. Cooks who would like to contribute should send their recipes to Mrs. Philip Worn, 25 Woodside Lane.

. . . and Hot Dogs. The Gourmet Booth is part of the overall food section, and families who go to the Fete will be able to buy brownies and cupcakes, old-fashioned bread and, of course, hot dogs and soft drinks.

Mrs. Douglas Corlette, Mrs. Leslie L. Vivian, Jr., and Mrs. Richard G. Woodbridge, III, are overall chairman of the food section. Mrs. Stephen Froelich, Mrs. Robert Kling, Mrs. Gerald Gillet, Mrs. C. Dickey Dyer, III, Mrs. Margaret Smith and Mrs. Worn are Gourmet Booth chairmen.

Assisting churches and their chairmen are: Mrs. Thurland Wilkinson, Calvary Baptist; Mrs. Mortimer Feldman, Jewish Center; Mrs. William R. Schowalter, Lutheran of the Messiah; Mrs. Edward McCall, Methodist; Mrs. Richard Judge and Mrs. Robert McCarthy, St. Paul's Roman Catholic and Mrs. Stuart Foote, Trinity.

Members of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Princeton First Aid Squad, the Princeton Lions Club, the Boy Scouts and the Princeton Hospital Volunteers (Mrs. Robert Merritt and Mrs. R. B. Sowers, chairmen) will also also assist in the food section.

YOU ARE INVITED

To "Open Space" Meetings. Princeton Township's Open Space Commission announced that it will welcome public attendance at the start of its monthly meetings to hear any questions or comments about its work. The organization meets in Township Hall at 8 p.m. on the fourth Tuesday of each month, with the next meeting scheduled for May 28.

Purpose of the commission is to work toward the preservation of desirable open land

TO SPONSOR YOUNGSTERS

At Camp Institute. The Princeton Council of Community Services will provide an opportunity for area high school students to attend the Fourth Brotherhood Youth Institute at Camp Kittatinny, August 25-30.

Mrs. W. F. Stahlman, chairman of the intergroup relations committee of the council, reported that 13 students were sponsored by the organization last year. It has been recommended that a similar number from Princeton attend this year.

Applications should be made to Thomas Seraydarian of the Princeton High School guidance office before Wednesday May 1. Other helping with the program are Mrs. J. William Blattenberger, Mrs. George Geary, Mrs. W. Duane Lockhard, Mrs. Bayram Vural, Mrs. Ruth Lotz and William Cooke.

Some 150 residents attended the ceremony. Herman W. Hanssler and Joseph M. Matan, democratic candidates for township committee, presented an analysis of the primary election returns.

SUMMER SCHOOL SET

By Chapin. For the first time in its 32 years of existence, the Chapin School will have a combination summer tutoring school and day camp, according to F. J. Worthington, president of the board of trustees. Alexander P. Robinson, assistant headmaster, will direct the summer school.

The program, extending from June 24 to August 7, will be open to students in the second through eighth grades. It will offer one-hour classes, limited to four students per tutoring class, in mathematics, reading, history, and English, and each student will be required to take two courses.

The afternoon camp program, open only to students enrolled in the morning session, will offer a full range of day camp activities, including swimming and tennis. Available in case of inclement weather is the newly constructed gymnasium. Further information on the program can be obtained at the Chapin School from Mr. Robinson.

A CASE OF "CRUSHING PEARLS"

Misunderstanding Christ on Baptism

Many people look upon baptism as a ceremony devoid of meaning. They cannot see beyond or beneath the outward physical act.

To others baptism is thought of primarily as a "church ordinance" – an official requirement of church membership.

The carnal mind conceives of baptism as a mere "ducking" in water, an outward form of religion, a religious formality. In like manner, the term "water salvation" is applied to all who adhere to Christ's teaching on the necessity of baptism.

These materialistic, legalistic misconceptions of baptism are clear examples of "crushing pearls" – a description given by Christ to those incapable of comprehending spiritual truth (Matthew 7:6). Such views fail to grasp the deep spiritual significance of baptism.

Only two accounts in all of the Bible teach mankind what Christian baptism is, and both of them describe baptism as a burial. These two accounts are:

"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection" (Romans 6:3-5).

"Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead" (Colossians 2:12).

From these scriptures we can discern the spiritual side of baptism. In baptism we are united with Christ in his death, burial, and resurrection. Since the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ are the principal facts of the gospel, it follows that we obey the gospel of Christ by reproducing or re-enacting in our lives, symbolically, the death, burial, and resurrection of the Lord. As a man is buried in water he presents to the world a picture of the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, thereby demonstrating his faith in Christ's death. This is the "form of doctrine" alluded to by Paul in Romans 6:17.

Baptism, therefore, is the very act through which we are brought spiritually into Christ and his spiritual body (Galatians 3:27; 1 Corinthians 12:13).

The teaching of baptism is inextricably connected with the remission of sins made possible by the shed blood of Christ (Matthew 26:28). Peter told the believing Jews on Pentecost to "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins" (Acts 2:38). Paul was instructed to "Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins" (Acts 22:16). Jesus taught the necessity of baptism when he declared, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16:16).

This is not "water salvation," for water cannot save! Peter teaches, "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God), by the resurrection of Christ" (1 Peter 3:21).

Baptism, then, is not a ceremony or formality. It must be spiritually discerned in order to be properly understood. Baptism is the divinely appointed means by which we are united with Christ in his death, burial, and resurrection. When we are baptized into his death, we gain the benefit of his shed blood: the remission of our sins. When we are raised with him, we gain the benefit of his resurrection: the promise of eternal life.

Question of the Week

Question: Do you think Governor Rockefeller's remarriage will have any effect on his political future?

Where asked: Palmer Square.

Donald McNinch, Alexander Road, carpenter: Yes, I do, quite a bit. I think the main reason why he got divorced was in order to marry this younger woman. And I think the fact that he got a divorce and did remarry will have a negative effect on his political career.

John Brabson, Kingston, carpenter: It probably won't but I think it should. I feel if he can't control his personal life, how can he control the country?

Mrs. Ben Herman, Skillman, housewife: No, why should it? I think the marriage is his own personal affair. I think any person running for political office should be judged on his abilities alone.

Glenn Underwood, 61 Wheatsheaf Lane, teacher, Princeton High School: I don't think so because I believe the people will vote for the ability of the man himself regardless of his married life. We had similar cases in the Roosevelt family and I don't think it affected them too much.

George A. Thomas, Brown Hall, Princeton Theological Seminary: I think if we look at it realistically, it will have some effect. I think it would be naive to think it would not have any at all. I think it will have an adverse effect but whether it will be disastrous or not, I can't say.

Mrs. Paul Hawk, 293 Riverside Drive, housewife: I definitely do because—I think I am correct in this—there never has been a divorced man elected president of the United States. I think his remarriage will have a big influence on the voting of the women of this country. I think that many women feel they can't trust completely a divorced man. I could see the divorce if the Rockefellers had been married just a few years—some couples just aren't compatible—but they have been married 31 years. I should think after 31 years, they should have been able to adjust to any situation. I don't believe in divorce and this would affect my own personal feelings toward Rockefeller.

Frank Langhammer, Patton Hall, Princeton University freshman: I don't think it should have any effect because I think this is a personal matter between Governor Rockefeller and his wife. I think it will affect him adversely, however. It's hard to put into words but very often people will vote for a candidate because of some "feeling" they have for him and not for what his views may be on political issues. Many people tend to look less kindly on a divorced person than they would on a person who has had a long and happied married life. And while I don't think people should cast their vote on the basis of his divorce and remarriage, I think many people will.

Mrs. Edwin Hinsdale, 63 Knoll Drive, housewife: What I think should be done is to have some national magazine reprint that picture of the first Mrs. Rockefeller as she walked out of the divorce court in Reno on the arm of one of her sons—it was terribly sad—and then print a picture of the beaming bridal couple and let the public make up its own mind.

John Henderson, 30 Henderson Avenue, painter for grounds and buildings department, Princeton University: No, I don't. I don't think a man's married life has too much to do with politics.

Mrs. Lance Marshall, Piedmont Drive, Princeton Junction, housewife: I don't think it should, but it probably will. That's the way some peoples' minds work.

Kenneth Kleidon, Plantation Apartments, Route 1, Seminary student: I don't really think so, even though there is a moral issue involved here. I think some people might vote against him because of the moral issue involved, just as I think some voted against Kennedy because he was a Catholic but I don't think the general masses would vote against a man because of his private life, especially the nature of this situation. Divorce and remarriage are quite common nowadays among well-known people. I think if people feel Rockefeller is competent for the office he is running for, they will vote for him.

Mrs. Eugene Raudsepp, 23 Linden Lane, housewife: Yes, I think public opinion is very much against this sudden remarriage. It was much too abrupt—less than a month after her divorce. He could have been a little more subtle about it. Public opinion certainly won't be very favorable, in my opinion. I hope he doesn't run as a candidate at all; I don't think he is good presidential material.

Alan Reutter, Seminary student: I think it will depend upon the persons who are to eventually judge him. It has been said that some people consider it a bold move and for that reason have a great deal of respect for him. Others have looked upon it as a foolish move, in the light of his political aspirations. I think it will have some effect because there are some people that demand some sort of standard. There are always those who feel that men who are in a particular position, as is Governor Rockefeller, should be above the more shady things that are common in everyday life. I would say it definitely will have some effect. In a sense, though, I have some respect for him for having made it. A lot of men would have valued their political career over and above their personal happiness, in the same situation.

Mrs. Irene Roberts, 37 Palmer Square, homemaker: Yes, I do. Maybe not to the majority of the people—it wouldn't with me—but I've just happened to hear a few people talking about it—unfavorably. Of course, a lot of people have taken a dislike to him for many reasons. I came recently from Rochester, N. Y., and a lot of people upstate don't like him. They said if he ran against Kennedy, they just wouldn't vote. For those who might have been on the fence in their feeling toward him, I think this will have an adverse effect.

Ted Fiske, Theological Seminary student, waiter, journalist: I think it will depend on her personality. If she is able to present an attractive personality to the public, she'll be more of an asset to him in campaigning than if he were to go in as a divorce. In any case, since the election is still far away, I think he's better off politically going in as newly-married than recently-divorced.

Miss Judy Platten, Westcott Road, research department for Woodrow Wilson Foundation: I don't see why one's personal life should have anything to do with whether one is is capable of doing a good job in political office. I think it will affect some peoples' thinking about him. It is hard to put into words but he has a personal life that people can twist around and interpret anyway they choose. Some are going to say, "Look, he's divorced. Do you think he's reliable for the job?"

Earl Slaybaugh, Baltimore, IBM salesman: I think his personal life, like anybody else's, should be his own business. But in his situation, being a public figure, anything he does is magnified. I feel it will definitely have a positive effect on any future campaigns he plans on entering. For example, I think it will help and not hurt his presidential chances. I think his remarriage will overcome any negative effect that might have been produced for the moment.

ANNIVERSARIES MARKED

By Edmund Cook & Co.

"Knowledge, skill and a high sense of ethics are three qualities necessary to successful real estate brokerage," says a leading authority in the field. "These, along with intelligence, ability and training, are attributes necessary to the business."

Among the many exemplary real estate professionals in Princeton, none demonstrate these six characteristics more clearly than do Edmund D. Cook and his associates, who this week celebrate three anniversaries.

Friday marks the 40th anniversary of the date when Mr. Cook, president of the firm, entered the business and the 70th anniversary of the company's founding by his grandfather, Edmund B. Cook. Both anniversaries also coincide with the annual "Realtor Week."

The founder, who started the firm in 1893, carried on the business until his death in 1919. And it was on May 17, 1923, that the organization was reactivated by the current president, Edmund D. Cook, who has carefully and continuously developed the firm into one of the most widely known and well-organized real estate companies in the profession.

Princeton's Evolution. Mr. Cook, who has earned the enviable if unofficial title of "dean of Princeton real estate brokers," has played an important part in the smooth evolution of Princeton from sprawling village to one of the country's most handsome and distinctive residential communities. He was instrumental in the preservation of the Revolutionary War memorial grove and its donation to the state as an historic site.

The grove, once part of the Moses Taylor Pyne estate, later became the focal point for the development of Princeton Battlefield Park.

Mr. Cook and his company also were responsible for saving and restoring the 160-year-old "Carnahan House," Princeton's first hospital and later nurses' home. In 1951 it was cut into four pieces, loaded on huge trucks and moved to Arreton Road, almost two miles north of its original site on Witherspoon Street. It was then reassembled and remodeled at its new location into two private residences.

Among the other leading projects that Mr. Cook's company has undertaken was the division of the former Frothingham house on Hodge Road into two homes. This ingenious and pioneering example of making two halves equal much more than their sum was completed in 1939, and in 1941 the same general procedure was followed in splitting and remodeling the Frelinghuysen house on Library Place into two handsome dwellings.

Wood vs. Stone. "The division of the Frothingham house was comparatively easy," Mr. Cook says, "because the original structure was made of wood and consisted of the main house and a wing which had been added later. The wing was merely separated from the house, moved to the adjoining lot and remodeled.

"The Frelinghuysen house was much more of a job because of its heavy, stone exterior. In that instance it would have been almost prohibitively expensive and difficult to divide the house by moving one part away from the other. The solution here was to cut a slice out of the center of the original house and put in two, new outside walls."

Mr. Cook's first venture into the field of remodeling and restoration of many of Princeton's fine old buildings came in 1924 when he bought the structure at the corner of Nassau Street and Linden Lane, at one time a small school for girls. This was renovated as a home for Mr. Cook's mother. In 1931 he restored the house at 114 Mercer Street as a residence for himself and his family.

Salary vs. Commission. Always an innovator and originator in his field, Mr. Cook in 1937 became the first real estate broker to place all of his sales personnel on salary rather than on commission. This arrangement, although still rare among brokerage firms throughout the country, has proved to be most successful.

"I knew that a commission salesman is sometimes more interested in his own tangible compensation than he is in selflessly serving his client," Mr. Cook says. "The salary basis on which we have since been operating permits the special skills of all of our personnel to be available to every client. To make sure that these skills continue to develop, most of our staff are constantly attending courses on new developments in the profession."

Mr. Cook named the sale and subsequent management of the 20 Nassau Street office building as his biggest transaction to date. "Probably the most interesting, however, was arranging for the sale of 'Morven,' the governor's mansion, to then Governor Walter Edge," he added "The Stockton family sold it to the Governor with the agreement that it would pass on to the state to be used as an executive mansion, a state museum or historic site. The sale was consummated on November 19, 1944."

The Price Is Right. When asked his opinion on Princeton real estate prices, which often hit would-be residents with something more than a jolt, Mr. Cook gave this logical explanation

"The value of any real estate is determined by, among other factors, its location. The reason for Princeton real estate prices being what they are is because of the great demand for places here on account of the unique environment and facilities available to residents. While it's true that the real estate investment is larger, return on the investment is also better and faster than in other communities. Buying in Princeton compared with buy-

FROM CHILDREN'S TOYS TO EXTENSIVE HOBBY: Edmund D. Cook, leading Princeton real estate broker, was given a few toy fire engines by a friend a number of years ago. First used for the amusement of clients' children, the assortment was supplemented by gifts from insurance companies, then substantially added to by Mr. Cook. Now, the still-growing collection is large, colorful and of considerable value.

What does it mean to be rated?

Not long ago men and women with coronary artery disease, tuberculosis or diabetes were unable to obtain life insurance. Today it is possible for many of these people to be accepted in a special premium classification. Technically speaking they are said to be "rated" policyowners. For many years Manufacturers Life has contributed leadership in this special field. Today we are well known for our progressive outlook and for the favorable premium rates being offered.

At Manufacturers Life each application for insurance is individually reviewed by experienced, highly qualified medical underwriters. Most applicants are accepted at regular rates; those with special health problems at the lowest possible extra rate.

Whatever your needs you can be sure of progressive life insurance service when you call the Man from Manufacturers.

SIZZLING FINISH
As Yale Retains Track Title.

The few hundred spectators, who barely outnumbered the meet officials and contestants in the Heptagonal Games, were warmly rewarded by the climactic event Saturday for having sat through more than three hours of bone-chilling May weather.

The anchor lap which Yale's Wendell Moffley ran in Palmer Stadium to win the mile relay was a thing of beauty, an achievement so picturesque that it will be remembered for years by track buffs and ordinary onlookers alike. The Eli who hails from Trinidad began the final 440 yards a good 30 yards behind the lead runner, who wore a large red H and whose team was one point ahead of Yale as the Blue sought to win the Hep title for an unprecedented fifth straight year.

Covering the cold cinders as if he were atom-driven, Moffley began eating into the Crimson's seemingly insurmountable lead before he rounded the first turn. Going into the straightaway he had the numbed crowd in an uproar as the distance between him and the runners he was pursuing began to melt like ice under a blow torch.

In the final turn, Moffley, running beautifully, bagged his man and when he hit the tape he had a rocking-chair lead of five yards. It was without question one of the finest performances in Palmer Stadium, which came into the spotlight 30 years ago with the Bonthron - Lovelock mile race and has seen a couple of dozen spectaculars since then.

Yale By Five. Moffley's triumph this split was timed as a great 46.7 quarter) gave Yale a total of 62 points, five more than runner-up Harvard, which lacked the Elis' all-around balance. Army was third with 50, and Navy with 41½ was the only other entry in the ten-team field to come close.

Cornell led the also - rans with 16. Princeton, in sixth place with 14, finished ahead of Brown, Penn, Dartmouth and Columbia.

Other than Moffley's running, the most eye-catching performances were by Harvard's Aggrey Awori, the Harvard sophomore who came to Cambridge from Uganda, and Bill Straub, Army's tireless distance runner. Awori won the 100 and the 200, heading into a frequently stiff wind which held his times to 10.1 and 21.9.

He also picked up a third in the broad jump but ran out of gas in the middle of the high hurdles. His achievements made him the day's high scorer with 15 — more points than any of the last five teams in the meet managed.

Straub achieved a Heptagonal "first" when he won the mile in a good 4:09.5 and came back an hour and three-quarters later to take the two mile in 9:04.2.

Princeton's victor was John Hartnett in the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 4 inches. Others also topped the bar at this height, but Hartnett managed it with a smaller number of misses.

DRAMA AT NEW HAVEN
Another Last - Second Win.

Ferris Thomsen's lacrosse team not only turned back Yale at New Haven Saturday, it broke the Princeton record for defeating the Elis in the final minute.

When attackman Ernie Dreher beat the Eli goalie from just outside the crease, the clock stopped with just six seconds left. It shaved a second off the previous low for scoring the winning goal against Yale, and raised to four the number of lacrosse victories Princeton has recorded over the Elis with less than a minute to go.

All of them have occurred since Thomsen became coach here a dozen years ago. The defeats are tougher to take at New Haven than they would be in almost any other sport, because the Blue holds just one lacrosse victory over Princeton in the last 32 years.

With Yale heavily favored to conquer Harvard at Cambridge this weekend, Princeton must still win its final two games from Dartmouth and Cornell in order to wrap up its seventh straight Ivy title. Of the two, the Indians are the better team; the Dartmouth game will be played Saturday at 2:30 on Finney Field.

Behind by 2-1 at the end of the first period and by 3-2 at the half, Thomsen's operatives jammed three goals into the Eli cage in the third quarter to take a 5-3 lead. The home team fought back, however, and with three minutes to go earned a 6-6 deadlock.

Princeton lost a man on a penalty at 12.30, Yale missing on two shots in the ensuing hectic 60 seconds and goalie Webb Harrison contributing a spectacular save to keep the Tigers in the ball game. The clock was on the field and overtime loomed when midfielder Bill Hardy gained possession for the Orange and Black.

Hardy raced into Yale territory, passed to Bob Kent behind the Yale goal, and Kent fed Dreher. The latter hit the net on a sharp thrust from almost point-blank range and the Princeton side of the field promptly went into orbit.

CLOSE CALL IN TENNIS
But Tigers Edge Yale, 5-4.

Strong winds, 38 - degree weather and a good Yale team were all overcome at New Haven Saturday as John Conroy's tennis players moved within two victories of their third straight Eastern Association championship. Matches with Cornell here Friday and with Dartmouth at Hanover on Wednesday remains on the schedule, but the Tigers seem sure to win both to complete another unbeaten season.

Herb Fitzgibbon, Princeton's fine no. 1 player, took his match in straight sets. The Tigers captured only two more singles but nailed down the odd match in the doubles to make it a 5-4 final.

CREW THIRD AT ITHACA
Cornell Wins Cup Again.

Rowing over a course shortened to a mile because of high winds, Cornell won the Carnegie Cup Saturday for the fourth straight year when it led Yale and Princeton over the finish line on Lake Cayuga. The Ithacans missed their fourth consecutive sweep of all races when Yale won the Jayvee event after the Red had taken the freshman affair.

Cornell, tabbed as this country's possible Olympic entry in 1964, rowed a stong race to lead Yale across the line by a length and three-quarters, covering the mile in 4:48.2. The Elis dropped to third when the bow oar, Pete Trafton, caught a crab but Princeton failed to hold the advantage thus gained. The Blue led the Tigers at the finish by a tenth of a second and a scant foot.

Princeton schedule Saturday. Off their performance to date, the Tigers are unlikely to qualify for the finals of the 2,000-meter event. Cornell, Penn, Harvard, Yale, Columbia and M. I. T have all been more impressive this season.

BALL TEAM BLANKED

Chance For Title Gone. The story on Princeton's often pleasantly puzzling baseball team can now be written. A Cinderella outfit that came from nowhere in 1962, the Tigers led the Eastern League for a while this season but couldn't win the big ones.

A week ago, they sailed into Annapolis on top of the pack with the first championship in a decade visible on the horizon. A 5-4 loss to defending champion Navy was then followed by a 4-0 whitewash at New Haven, and it wasn't even Yale's best pitcher who turned the trick.

As a result, the Tigers head for Hanover this weekend with the knowledge that a third straight defeat might drop them all the way into second division in the final standings. Actually, there is a weird mathematical possibility that a four-way tie at 6-3 could occur among Dartmouth, Columbia, Navy and Princeton but this is about as logical a development as the Mets winning the National League pennant.

In the event of any final deadlock in the standings, there will be no playoff. Such an opportunity is non-existent when either of the service teams is involved—they play each other after most of the rest of the colleges have finished their schedules, and then refuse to engage in a post-season game even if the other teams can be held together after examinations are over.

At New Haven, Princeton was guilty of all sorts of faulty baseball in losing to a Yale nine that was barely over the .500 mark on the season. The Tigers were held to six hits, left the bases loaded in the fourth and seventh and stranded two more in the eighth. Afield, they made three costly errors and two of the victors' four runs were unearned.

Gerry Skey was the losing pitcher, dropping his second game in a week after winning five in a row. In view of his teammates' three errors and no runs at all, it was small wonder.

FIRST ROUND RESULTS

In Springdale Handicap. All except one match has been played in the annual President's Cup handicap tournament at Springdale Golf Club. The results:

C. C. Foster, Jr., beat H. G. Houghton, 1 up, 21 holes; R. M. Drake, Jr., beat J. P. Chubet, 4 and 3; E. D. Shaw beat Dr. J. T. James, 1 up, 19 holes; J. B. Grover beat A. E. McVitty, 1 up; R. A. Gardner beat P. J. Wainford, 3 and 1; J. C. Sweeney beat D. D. Dickey, 3 and 2; P. B. Marzoni, Jr., beat Dean Mathey, 1 up; O. L. Nelson beat Edward Conlin, 2 and 1.

Also, F. T. Richards beat T. S. Dignan, 6 and 5; Dr. F. W. Paine beat W. R. Bonthron, 4 and 2; W. W. Augustine beat Fred Schluter, Jr., 7 and 6; Nelson Case beat D. P. Donahue, 1 up; Wilton Jaffee beat J. S. Thornton, 2 and 1; J. W. Kauffman beat G. DeWitt Boice, 4 and 3; W. R. Shillaher, Jr., beat F. M. Blaicher, 8 and 6.

The one first-round match still to be ptayed is between R. D. McCarthy and E. J. Donovan. It is scheduled for this week.

PHS WINS TWO

But Loses Tournament Bid. When the Princeton High School baseball team was blanked 3-0 by Freehold last Thursday, it lost more than just another ball game. The defeat dropped the Little Tigers to 5-7 and knocked them out of contention for post-season tournament play.

Against Freehold pitching, PHS could only manage a single by Paul Walstad and an infield single by Dave Muni. But sandwiched around that defeat was a come-from-behind 3-2 victory over Franklin Friday and a 17-0 shellacking of Hunterdon Central earlier in the week.

The Little Tigers have now entered the final two weeks of play. This week they will meet Hunterdon Central again on Friday at 3:30 and on Tuesday they will face Steinert, also for the second time, at 3:45. Both games will be played at Princeton's Harris Field.

In its first meeting against these two teams, PHS won. Thus the Little Tigers, now 6-7, have an opportunity to climb over the .500 mark for the first time this season.

A pair of victories would also serve toward making an excellent prognosticator of PHS coach Harry Zoll. At the beginning of the season, Zoll assayed the talent of his untested squad and predicted that, if he got some hitting, the Blue and White should win at least half its games. Unless PHS collapses, which is unlikely, it would appear Harry is going to call it perfectly.

For five innings Friday, PHS southpaw Tom Stemmle had a no-hitter. Then in the sixth, Franklin's Tom Diaforli homered with a man on to give the visitors a 2-1 lead. It was the same Diaforli, by the way, who got the only hit off Stemmle when Tom one-hit Franklin earlier in the season for a 5-0 victory. (Diaforli played first base for PHS two years ago, before Franklin built its new high school.)

After the next batter followed with a single for the third consecutive Franklin safety, Stemmle was out and veteran Jack Rosso was in. Rosso walked the first man to face him but settled down after that to retire the side in order. Dan Corvino pitched the seventh inning for PHS. Rosso got credit for the victory, his second against four defeats.

The home team bounced right back in the same inning for two runs to win it. Jack Britton and Tom Sculerati walked on eight straight pitches. So did starting pitcher Rick Bonham. In came left fielder Ken Brown to take over on the mound.

Ward Delivers. Rich Giallella greeted him with a perfect bunt that went for a hit and the bases were jammed with Little Tigers. Ken Ward followed with a single, scoring the tieing and winning runs. The defeat was Franklin's 14th in 16 start and its fifth 3-2 defeat this year.

PHS scored its other run in the third inning. Sculerati was credited with a hit when the shortstop couldn't come up with his grounder. Stemmle then laid down a bunt. It was a good one and the third baseman, who had to hurry to make the play, threw the ball over first. Sculerati came all the way home on the miscue.

If this was a squeaker, the Hunterdon contest was a romp. It was a day for fattening batting averages. Rightfielder Dave Shields rapped out five singles in five at bats to raise his average 104 points in one game to .390.

Of the 15 hits banged out by PHS, three were by shortstop Dave Muni, including two triples. First sacker Jimmy Case collected three hits and Paul Walstad two. Mike Dorio got the only hit for the losers, a single.

Dan Corvino, the first of three PHS hurlers, got the win, going four innings. Rick Vomacka and Bob Herman finished up. In the eight games he has appeared in, Corvino has given up only one earned run in 17 innings for a fine 0.53 ERA. He now has one victory and one save to his credit.

The visitors wore out their welcome in the fourth inning when they scored eight runs to break a scoreless tie. It was the biggest inning for the Little Tigers this year. They added six more in the next frame.

and, apparently reluctant to end a good thing, three more in the next.

The Big Inning. Shields led off with his third straight single. Muni singled. Scuderati walked to load them up. Corvino fired out deep to right, scoring Shields with the first run. Scuderati thru stole second and Ward walked to load them up again.

Gallela walked to force in the second run. Case stroked a single, scoring two more runs and leaving runners on first and second. Ray Brillon got on via an error and once again the bases were jammed with Little Tigers. Then Paul Walstad, who was to come to the plate four times with the bases loaded and who was to deliver on three of those occasions, singled home the fifth and sixth runs.

With runners on first and second, Shields, up for the second time, connected for his fourth single, scoring the seventh run. Shields was out trying to stretch it into a double. Walstad then trotted home from third with the eighth run when Muni uncorked one of his two triples.

By the end of the week, including the Franklin contest, team batting was up eight points to .258. Case had taken over as the team's leading hitter with a .362 average. Captain Ray Brillon had dipped from .400 to .358 and Shields was third with a .353 mark. One sour note remains, however; the team is still striking out almost a third of the time, fanning 116 times in 364 at bats.

Defensively, the team is on the plus side. It climbed 11 points last week to .905, the first time it has reached the .900s this season. Ray Brillon and Corvino are fielding 1.000. They are followed by Walstad, the catcher, who has a .970 mark and by infielders Case and Ward, each .960.

HUN ENTERS FINAL WEEK

Pennington Game Decisive. The Hun School baseball team will play its final two games in the next week, meeting Pennington School Friday at 3:30 and Solebury Wednesday afternoon. Both contests will be played away.

For Hun, currently 6-1, Pennington will be THE game of the season. To the victor will go the championship of the six-team Penn-Jersey League. Both Hun and its neighbor from Pennington are undefeated in League competition.

Although he will be pitching with only two days rest, Mike Schnall is expected to get the nod from Hun coach Sandy Bing. Mike, who has been credited with the victory in Hun's last two outings, has emerged as the Red and Black's number one hurler. His record is three wins and no defeats.

If Hun can slide by Pennington, it should be able to wrap up the League crown with little difficulty. "We anticipate no trouble with Solebury, said assistant coach John Talbot. "Solebury has traditionally been the doormat for all schools in virtually every sport in league play." Hun defeated the Spartans in their first meeting on May 3, when it ran up the biggest run production of the campaign for an easy 13-7 decision.

THIS IS THE PHS STARTING STAFF: Jack Rosso (left) and southpaw Tom Steinmle represent the entire starting mound staff for the Princeton High School baseball team. Delbarton Cancelled. Last week, Saturday's scheduled contest here with Delbarton was cancelled. Hun's field, which is being worked on throughout the season, was left in an unplayable condition after the rain of the two preceding days. The contest was not rescheduled.

Earlier in the week, on Wednesday, Hun won its sixth in seven starts, edging Peddie, 8-7. The game was played at Hightstown. Mike Schnall, in relief of Scott Page, got credit for the win.

There was a bizarre touch to the game. It ended with Hun scoring the winning run while the home team was in the midst of recording a triple play. "Even now, nobody is quite sure just how the game ended," said Talbot.

According to one report, Hun, trailing by one run in the final inning, tied it up on three walks and a single. Then, with the bases still loaded, Hun's Ted Isaacson popped up to first for the automatic out. But Bob Elder, Pingry first baseman, first dropped the ball and then kicked it, allowing the runner from third to score the winning run.

Meanwhile, Elder had recovered, fired the ball across the diamond to make a play on the runner sliding into third. The third baseman then threw to second to nip the Hun runner sliding in. However, the runner at third was ruled safe and when the Peddie coach protested, the Hun player, thinking time was out, left the bag and was tagged for the final out.

Before the fireworks of the last two innings, Hun had piled up a 5-1 lead. Ted Isaacson and captain Alex Langel hit doubles for Hun. Langel's blow driving in two runs. For hard-luck Peddie, it was its eighth loss against three wins.

LARRIES TAKE TWO

In Week's Baseball. Lawrenceville's baseball team doubled its previous total win production last week with victories over the George and Hill Schools.

After a 3-2 squeaker earlier in the week, the team came back on Saturday for an extra-inning win over Hill at Pottstown, Pa. The Lacries erupted for five runs in the top of the tenth to clinch the victory. Bob Moore picked up the decision against George although he was relieved in the fourth. The Larries faced Peddie Wednesday and oppose Hill Friday in the next to the last full week of competition.

The tennis team had its four-game win streak snapped by the Princeton University freshmen by a 6-3 score but rebounded for a 9-0 shut out over Hill Saturday. Co-captain Dick Appleby paced the win with a 6-1, 6-2 victory. Wednesday's opponent was George and Saturday the squad will travel to Hill.

Bob Hatcher broke a school record in the seldom-run two-mile event as he led the Red and Black track team to its fifth win in six meets by an 81-46 score over the Columbia freshmen in New York. The Larries made it six for seven as they came home Saturday to beat Peddie, 75-40.

Hatcher's time was 10.10.8, breaking the old mark set in 1939 by more than 15 seconds. The squad will warm up for the state meet with a dual contest against Hill Friday.

Winner of its first four games, the lacrosse team ran into trouble last week and absorbed defeats by the Rutgers freshmen and Hill. The college team handed the Larries a 13-5 trounceing and Hill scored a goal in overtime to win 4-3. The team opposed Peddie Wednesday in this week's only contest.

The Red and Black golfers picked up two more victories against the Princeton freshmen and Hill, leaving two more matches before the state tournament. Choate supplied the opposition Wednesday and Hill is scheduled at home Friday.

SOFTBALL PLAY BEGINS

In Business League. Action started last week in the expanded, nine-team Business Softball League, with the winner to receive the TOWN TOPICS Trophy following playoffs in August. The 1962 champion was RCA.

Three of the teams in last year's league, Gulton, Opinion Research and Industrial Reactor, are no longer members. New entries include Princeton Hospital, Accelerator, American Cyanamid and Scientific Electronics, the latter a Hopewell team whose membership includes several refugees from ORC.

The Hospital, which had all kinds of trouble winning in the basketball league last winter, found softball more productive of victory as it edged Accelerator, 12 to 11. Al Pitardi homered in the sixth for the victors, who were paced by Tom Dwyer and Wes McWhite each with three for four. For the losers, Joe McFadden also collected three hits in four at bats while Barry Hibbs laced out two triples and John Rzuczek hit a pair of two-baggers.

Only one man reached second base for Engineering Research as the strong ETS nine opened its season with an 11-0 victory. Bones Gilbert was the winning pitcher; Fred Fritzky and Steve Scibetta were both three for four.

RCA Rally Wins. Two runs in the last inning gave RCA a 9 to 8 verdict over Scientific Electronics with Art Hahn besting George Boccanfuso on the mound. Walt Heinbothem collected a single, double and triple for RCA, while Max Hopkins and Walt Reichert were both two for four. Howard Sweeney hit a grand slam for the losers, while Boccanfuso also starred at bat with three hits including a triple.

American Cyanamid ran into difficulty at the start, losing its first two games. Electro-Mechanical Research hammered out a 16 to 5 victory as Vince Crivelli numbered a double and a homer among his three hits. Joe Csersevits also homered while Charlie Jackson was three for three. Clark Lennon and Bill Biehe hit for the circuit for Cyanamid.

Columbian Carbon defeated Cyanamid Thursday, 18-11, erasing a 14-3 deficit in the final inning with a ten-run rally. Dave Thayer was five for five. Frank Chianese hit two homers and Carmeo Armenti, Jim Chiorell and Jim Weidenhafer one apiece. Ted Cader was the winning pitcher.

Cory S. Kammler

An amateur sociologist held our attention with a talk on the different kinds of marriages in societies around the world. He said that marriage, the union of one man and one woman is much older than the world's history, and must be a natural state because it is, and has been for eons, practiced in the most primitive, even savage tribes and societies, and many other mammals and birds practice only single mating, or monogamy. That is not to say that these are the only kind of marriages practiced, but single mating apparently predates polygamy (in which one man has more than one wife at a time) and polyandry (in which a woman has more than one husband at a time). Both polygamy and polyandry have been widely practiced at various times by many people throughout the world, and polygamy is still common in Mohammedan countries, and, particularly, in Africa, where some men have as many as hundreds of wives. In business, it is said that our customers "marry" us, which we believe stems from our exceptional concern for their welfare. Let us demonstrate this truth. . .come see for yourself, and right now we have wonderful values. Kammler Buick-Pontiac Co., Route 206, opposite Princeton Airport, WA 1-2222.

Mr. Cook, whose company has "one of the best real estate libraries in the nation," according to the National Association of Real Estate Boards in late years has spent the major part of his time on appraisals. He is a former president of the New Jersey Chapter of Real Estate Appraisers and was the first president of the Mercer County Chapter of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers.

He has been employed by local, state and national governments, utility companies, financial institutions and national corporations, as well as by numerous individuals for the valuation of property. Also, he has appeared as a qualified witness on real estate values before county, state and federal courts. And, despite his extremely active business career, Mr. Cook has devoted countless hours to highly useful "extra-curricular" affairs and activities in the Princeton community.

For the Future. With a staff of experts, each a specialist in one of the many fields relating to real estate, Mr. Cook says that his company's objective is "to continue, as in the past 40 years, to learn more and more to serve our clients better and better."

In addition, Mr. Cook will continue to devote much of his time to the many organizations of which he is a member whose announced purpose has been, and will be, "to promote fuller knowledge, greater skill and completely ethical practices among those whose profession is real estate."

12 HOMES PLANNED

For Rosedale Corner. Twelve houses, designed in the Colonial style, will be built by Hunt and Augustine on the corner of Rosedale and Province Line Roads.

The 26-acre wooded plot will be laid out in such a manner that no telephone or utility poles will be visible above ground, according to William W. Augustine of the construction firm.

Plans call for the construction of two or three houses this summer, Mr. Augustine said. The dwellings will be in the upper price brackets.

FOUR ARE NAMED

By Planning Firm. Management Planning, Inc., 192 Nassau Street, a financial advisor to industry specializing in analyses of closely-held companies, has announced four personnel advancements.

Benjamin F. McMahon of Lawrenceville and Allyn A. Joyce have been named vice-presidents. Robert M. Meyers of Cranbury has been elected to the company's board of directors and Lester K. Hunt has been named assistant to the president.

Mr. Meyers is a Harvard graduate. A 1941 graduate of Yale, Mr. McMahon joined the firm in 1952 as a financial analyst. Mr. Joyce joined Management Planning in 1954, after receiving his M.S. in Finance from Columbia. He lives in Middlebush.

$100,000 CONTRACT LET

To General Devices. General Devices, Inc., of Princeton has been awarded government subcontracts in excess of $100,000 for production quantities of its electromechanical commutators.

Murray Medvin, general sales and marketing manager, reported the commutating switches will be delivered to installations all over the world. They are used in data machanisms in the world-wide Early Warning System, in anti-submarine warfare systems and in air-to-surface missiles. In place of the standard industry guarantee of 200 to 500 hours a day a few years ago, the units being shipped by GD are guaranteed to operate for a period of 5000 to 10,000 hours.

Mr. Medvin also revealed that General Devices' business for the first quarter of 1963 has far exceeded that of the first quarter of 1962. The success of its new lines in subminiature commutators and multi-coders is expected to increase its business further. This year is the tenth of its operation.

PHS NINE WINS, 7-3

Stemmle Winning Pitcher. The all-around performance of Tom Stemmle paced Princeton High School's baseball team to a 7-3 victory over Steinert Tuesday on the losers' diamond. The Little Tiger hurler was two for four at the plate and drove in three runs.

His first hit, two walks and three straight Steinert errors wrapped up the game as early as the second when the Blue and White scored five times. Stemmle also singled in the fourth to make it 6-0.

Steinert rallied for three runs in the last of the seventh, bringing on Bud Vomacaka in relief for PHS. The triumph put the Blue and White even with the .500 mark at 7-7.

SUSAN AND PETER: Two old friends take the hurdles together in preparation for the annual Pine Brae Horse Show to be held this Sunday at the club on the Blawenburg Road. The rider is Susan Howland, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Jonathan Howland, 2719 Main Street, Lawrenceville. Peter is the horse.

RUNNERS ARE READY

For THS Meet Friday. A strong Trenton High School track squad will journey to Princeton Friday for a 3:30 track meet with the Little Tigers. "It will," said PHS coach Jerry Groninger, "be a very difficult meet for us."

It won't be a question of who will win but how much. Groninger reported the Blue and White has a good chance to capture firsts in the javelin, mile and half-mile, but in the remaining ten events he holds out little hope for any PHS victory. His team is presently 2-5 in dual meet competition.

The Little Tigers sustained that fifth dual meet setback on Monday at Somerville. The home team captured ten first place finishes to post an easy 72-45 victory. In turn, the losers placed second in ten events.

First place winners for PHS included Jack Kelly in the javelin, Art Brooks in the broad jump, and Hank Schmidt in the half-mile. John Kowalski scored nine points by placing second in the 100, 220 and shot put events.

Gallagher Just Misses. Sophomore Jay Gallagher also came in second in a hotly-contested mile run. Both Jay and the winner were timed at 4:41.7 but Jay was a foot behind. The time was Gallagher's best effort of the year and Groninger reported it was excellent for a sophomore.

Saturday, a mile relay team comprised of Schmidt, Gallagher, Jim Norris and Larry Mueller competed in the Long Branch relays. It did not place. Gallagher ran the mile, Schmidt the half, Norris the quarter and Mueller the 220 leg of the relay event.

At the 17th annual running of the Trenton Jaycees Track and Field Meet held at Trenton High last week, PHS tied for seventh place with eight points. Jack Kelly won the javelin with a fine toss of 173' 2½". The only other PHS accomplishment was a fourth place finish by Schmidt in the mile and a fifth place by Al Spencer in the discus.

Trenton High won the event for the third straight year. Its total of 60½ points was 21 more than that of second-place Woodrow Wilson High schools from the Delaware Valley area competed.

TIGERS WIDEN LEAD

In YMCA Midget League. The Nassau Oil Tigers won three games last week in the American division of the YMCA Midget League for a perfect 5-0 record and a four-point league lead.

In the National League the defending world series champions, the Palmer Square Giants, suffered their first defeat in more than two and a half years. What no other team could do the Plainsboro Lions Pirates did, edging the Giants, 5-4. The decisive factor was Andy Campbell's fine pitching.

While early results would indicate that the American League will develop into a two-team race between the Tigers and the First National Bank Indians (4-1), the National League race is more scrambled. There the Princeton Savings Red Legs and the Princeton Bank Phillies—both undefeated—and the Pirates have served notice that the Giants will be embroiled in a dog fight in their quest for another championship.

The standings:

News Of The CHURCHES

FOR PARENTS ONLY

(Second in a series of brief articles directed to all concerned parents. Today's is that by the Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson, pastor of the Witherspoon Presbyterian Church. Mr. Anderson writes on "Explaining Death to Our Children.")

When questions concerning death come from our children, the parents' whole philosophy of life and religion is put to the test.

Edgar N. Jackson has succinctly stated that preparing a child to understand really begins before birth, with the attitude of the parents toward life and death. This insight should be carefully considered by parents in order that proper action should be taken to give the child the emotional conditioning which he needs to face the hard places of life.

There are parents who feel that it is their duty to surround their children with bland fabrications and evasive answers. They can not say, simply, "He is dead."

In order to shield their children from any contact with death they have resorted to such euphemisms as "Uncle Bill has gone away," or "Sister has gone to sleep." Such practices, of course, are meant to demonstrate love and concern for our children, to assist them in nullifying the impact of shock and loss, and to spare them contending with an experience that might be too much for them to bear.

Although the intention of such parents is good, the means employed result in the children being deprived of the right to share a deep emotional experience with their parents, the loss of important learning opportunities, and in the frustration realization that no fabrication or evasion can be so sufficiently maintained as to shield the child from ultimately learning the truth. Thus the risk now becomes that the confidence of the child in the integrity of his parents may be undermined.

Rev. Benjamin J. Anderson

"Do What Is Honest." Parents often ask if children should be sent away to stay with relatives or friends when death is imminent in a family, or if it is wise to allow them to visit funeral homes or attend funerals. It is helpful and wise to do what is honest and what will best support the reality sense of the child. Also basic in such cases is the protection of the child from wild fantasy and excessive flights of imagination which may impair the healthy development and eventual acceptance of the naturalness of death as a part of the life process.

Recent studies in child development assist parents in knowing the capacities of children to understand. One of the most important was made by Maria Nagey of Budapest, whose investigations resulted in new knowledge of children's theories about death.

Nagey's investigations discovered that the child, from about three to five, denies death as a regular and final process. To him death is like sleep; you are dead, then you are alive again. He can sense deprivation and a change in the structure of his security relationships, but it is beyond his capacity to comprehend the meaning of an irretrievable loss. For this reason, a child of this age may seem very callous to an adult.

The child, 5 to 9, begins to share some the capacity for abstract thought and so is able to comprehend more of death's meaning, not yet accepting it as a final process. But even then he does not understand the change in the structure of his relationships as much as he feels the insecurity, and his changed behavior may become his mode of expression.

Not until around the age of nine does a child begin to recognize death as inevitable for all persons, and as something that can come to him.

Another valuable contribution of Nagey's investigations is her identification of the three main questions in a child's mind concerning death. They are: 1. What is death? 2. What makes people die? 3. What happens to people after they are dead?

Many helpful suggestions to assist parents in answering these questions are offered by Helen H. and Lewis J. Sherrill in a current publication "Interpreting Death to Children," available from the Office of Publication and Distribution, National Council of Churches of Christ, 475 Riverside Drive, New York 27, N. Y.

In response to the question "What makes people die?," avoid such statements as "God took him," or "Jesus wanted him," or "He has gone now to be an angel," and the like. It is of vital importance to keep away from ideas that attribute the cause of death to God, thus avoiding the risk of picturing God as a threat to the physical security and emotional stability of the child. From such unwise answers, a child may develop an intense hatred of God which he then fears to express, which in turn invariably produces a sense of guilt to oppress, unnecessarily adding to his inner conflict and burden of loss.

Accidents, disease, and old age, the most common causes of death, should be explained calmly, objectively, in simple facts to a child. By concentrating on the immediate, rather than the ultimate causes, a child's attention is turned to the human elements of mistake and poor judgment, to the need for better preventive measures, and so forth. War, the fourth great cause of death, raises profound issues which parents should share with their children. Parents should again seek to keep their children's concepts of cause squarely in the realm of human relations and by all means to avoid blaming one particular nation or people for the death of a loved one. Such an interpretation prevents intense hostility from developing in children as may well contribute to the prevention of future wars.

What After Death? In answer to the question "What takes place after death," here even more than elsewhere the efforts of parents to respond adequately to a child's query places them in a realm, not of knowledge, but of hope. A deep religious faith serves to give both parents and child assurance. It will furnish the answers for those who have it about the place the dead go. For parents who do not have the answer an honest reply, such as "we don't know," is better than falsehoods and evasions.

Above all, the most important fact for us to know and believe is the one great article of hope in the Christian confessions of faith, a living hope which is a part of the common heritage of Christians, a hope which pervades the New Testament interpretation of death; and that is the continuation of life through eternity. Even though we may have difficulty in understanding and accepting it fully ourselves, there seems to be no valid reason for withholding from our children the knowledge that this hope exists and that it has always been a central point in Christian faith.

"Neither death nor life, neither what happens today nor what may happen tomorrow, nor anything else in God's whole world has any power to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord." This sense of certainty we can share with our children.

WOMEN STILL BANNED

From Episcopal Vestries. A motion to allow women to serve on New Jersey parish vestries was defeated last week by an overwhelming majority of the 600 Episcopal clergymen and laymen at the 179th diocesan convention, held in Trenton.

The Rev. Francis C. Huntington of Trinity Parish made the proposal on behalf of the Rev. Robert R. Spears Jr., rector, who was unable to attend.

Although some dioceses have changed, the prevailing practice is to limit vestry membership to men. The delegates felt that women taking on the added responsibilities of vestrymen might harm the present role they play through their own organizations within the New Jersey parishes.

"Lord Nelson Mass"

Haydn's Missa Solemnis in D Minor ("Lord Nelson Mass") will be sung at 11 Sunday by the adult choir of First Presbyterian Church directed by Mrs. Mary Krimmel. Mrs. Anna Royer, organist, and an orchestral ensemble will accompany.

Soloists will be Virginia Switten, soprano; Harriet Blizzard, alto; Warren Dodson, tenor and Joseph McKee, bass.

The victory of Lord Nelson at Abukir represented to Haydn, as to many others in Austria, the triumph of the Righteous over the Anti-Christ. News of the victory reached Vienna just as Haydn was completing the mass, and this is supposedly the inspiration for the crashing trumpets and drums at the end of the Benedictus.

FINE FOR A STARTER. This 9 year old, 3 bdrm house was just that for its present owners until a big house became needed (and feasible). From a condition point of view, it's hard to believe it's been inhabited; but at the same time, tasteful touches give it a happily lived-in air. Rec. rm., sep din. rm., laundry rm., lots of storage, dishwasher, are added interior assets. Outside appeal lies in the pretty, well-landscaped grounds, partly fenced for privacy, and a conveniently located turn-around street. $27,000 is a realistic price too.

NEW LISTING, OLDER HOUSE. Picture windows with lovely view of lake. 3 bdrms., 1½ baths, sep din. rm. charming setting.

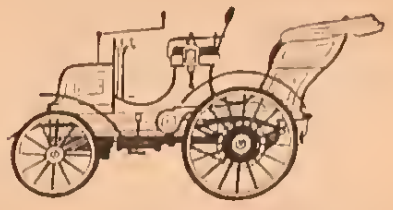
ANTIQUE CAR CONTEST

(advertisement #5)



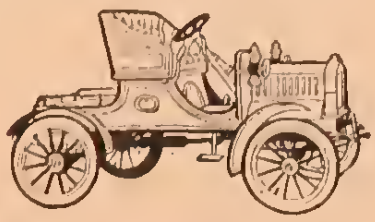
Clues: Two year before the model shown was built, Henry Ford completed his first car at 58 Bagley Avenue, Detroit. The exact date of model is the year of the Spanish American War and the year the Curies along with Bemont discovered radium. The car bears the name of the German inventor who took his motor to a French carriage building firm for the "carriage" body.

Boys and Girls

(age 14 and younger)

Don't Forget

This is a contest just for you. Winners earn Mother or Dad a free brake adjustment for their car. Contest entry form in our June 6th advertisement.



Clues: This car bears the name of a man who started as a mechanic before the turn of the century and who later became a competent automotive engineer. Jack Benny made this car known to radio listeners in the late '30's and '40's. Model shown was made the year Norway dissolved its union with Sweden, and this was two years after Ford Motor Company sold its first car, a two-cylinder model.

ELIZABETH JAMES SAYS:

It took money and taste!

Not, one, but both — to develop this farm estate to its present perfection.

First to find the property, high above the Delaware, with a breathtaking view; then to locate a pointed stone farm house on the leaside of the hill, warmed by the winter sun, cooled by the summer breezes, and slowly, lovingly, restore the total property—beginning with contour planting of the lands and developing a fascinating and healing spot in which to live. The stone terraces and patios, the swimming pool and tennis courts, the native plantings, the greenhouse, guest houses, garages, barn and main house are all quietly and beautifully in keeping with the surroundings.

The manor house, retaining open beamed ceilings, random width floors, old beautiful fireplaces, still has five master bedrooms and four baths as well as a servants wing with bath.

Seeing is believing. Offered with 150 acres for $225,000.

CAN IT BE THE TREES?

Decidedly. Towering oaks and pines, majestic hickories, flowering dogwoods abound at Pine Knoll in Lawrence Township. The reason: this was a famous tree nursery and the trees will remain. The soil is rich, the terrain gently rolling, the elevation one of the highest in the state. Next door to the Green Acres Golf Course. An elementary school right on the grounds. A mile to Lawrenceville Shopping Center. Five minutes from Princeton and Trenton.

This perfect site attracted one of the finest custom home builders of Princeton. He is building these 33 homes with the quality and luxury features that are his trademark. Come out today. You'll stay!
